TINLEY AIRPORT
HEAD TELLS
LIONS HOW TO FLY

Edward Prosperi, owner of the Tinley Park Airport, was the guest speaker at the monthly dinner of the Frankfort Lions Club held in the Frankfort Village hall Tuesday night. Mr. Prosperi gave an interesting talk on how to learn to fly, on the different makes of planes and invited the Lions to visit his airport at any time. He showed pictures of planes with pontoons used for fishing and hunting trips.

Wives of the Lions prepared and served a very delicious chicken dinner with all the trimmings. The dining table was prettily decorated with autumn leaves and lighted Jack O Lanterns in keeping with Halloween.

The following Frankfort servicemen were guests of the Lions: Ralph Nieland, Clark Bennett, Warren Bobzin, Gene Bogdon, D. Seeman, Walter Cheney and Clarence Heisner.

The Lions made plans for their annual Christmas party to be held in connection with their December meeting.

Lion George Sangmeister was instructed to contact the Palos Village Players relative to putting on one of their plays in Frankfort under the sponsorship of the Frankfort Lions Club.

LEGION MEMBERSHIP
A RARE DISTINCTION

The American Legion has grown into the largest Veteran's organization in this country, and perhaps any country's history. It now numbers more than 1,600,000 fighting men and women of World War I and II, more than 500,000 of them veterans of this war.

Yet large as the Legion is, it is a most exclusive organization. Neither money nor influence can buy a Membership. The doors of its 13,000 posts open only upon the presentation of an honorable discharge from war time service. The Legion has no honorary membership.

This makes American Legion membership a coveted possession. The Legion button a badge of valor. There are many who would gladly buy membership in the Legion if they only could.

Membership in the Legion is a recognition of individual investment in the future of the Nation, and of individual sacrifice to defense of country.

The Legion button stands for the bearer's contribution in toil and sweat, in drill and fatigue in undergoing willingly danger of death, in perhaps the spilling of one's own blood on a battlefield, all in the cause of the Nation's freedom. Be it World War I or II the color of blood is the same.

It took the American Legion a quarter of a century to get where it is today, with 13,000 posts, $100,000,000 in assets and a Membership that embraces the leaders of all walks of life, from the White House to the Village Council.

The history of Veterans' organizations disclose that the first fifteen years are the hardest. G. A. R. did not reach its full stride until 20 years after it was organized. The Legion did not get going in a big way until the mid thirties. 15 years or more after it was founded. There are already some 150 World War II organizations in existence, and not one of them is showing much promise.

Most of them exist mostly to promote the interest of the promoters some of them are plain rackets.

The Orland Park Post of the American Legion meets the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at 8 p.m. and welcomes All servicemen and women at their meetings.

At a recent meeting we voted to give a free membership to All World War II veterans in our district which comprises Orland Park, Worth and Palos Townships. We have a potential membership in this district of over 300 members. And now the American Legion offers veterans of this war its great going concern to be taken over, lock, stock and barrel. It's a great opportunity because the Legion is a precious heritage, well worthy of the sacrifices and valor of the men and women who fought and won World War II.

Howard Orr, Commander John E. Barton, Chairman of Membership committee for World War II veterans.

Tinley Woman
Figures In Peculiar Accident

While Mrs. Moses of Sayre Ave., Tinley Park was driving home last Saturday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock, she lost control of her car and ran into the side of Mr. Peter Becker's home.

Mr. Becker lives in the southeast subdivision near 177th and Harlem in Tinley Park. The house was quite badly damaged and the car was wrecked. Mrs. Moses seemed to be injured in her chest and was removed to St. Joseph's hospital in Blue Island where she is still a patient.

SUNDAY EVENING FORUM
TO START OCT. 21
AT COMMUNITY CENTER

The Community Center Foundation at Palos Park, under the direction of Rev. Paul T. Sanders, is starting a series of Sunday Evening Forums. The first one will be Sunday evening Oct. 21 at 8 p.m. Plans are made to discuss the various tension points which the world is facing today, as well as the factors that will enter into the new world order that will help to save our present civilization.

Leaders in different fields will be brought to the Forum and followed by open discussion. Some of the topics to be considered are:

The Breakdown of the American Home, 1. The cause of increasing divorce rate, 2. The problem of delinquent children.

The Problem of Race Relations: 1. As related to our domestic situation, 2. As related to the World situation.

The Integration of Veterans into our Community Life.

The Problem of the Alcoholic.

Russia and the Orient as Related to World Peace.

If you are interested in thinking through these problems with us, you are cordially invited to attend.

BIG CARNIVAL IN
MOKENA NOV. 2 AND 3

November 2nd and 3rd will be RED Letter Days for the community surrounding Mokena. The Mokena PTA is staging the annual carnival and bazaar under the leadership of John R. Scarth.

Mr. Scarth gave us two days of fun and frolic last Fall and this year's carnival and bazaar promises to be even better.

The high light of Friday's (November 2nd) entertainment will be Waly Matz, the Beau-Brummel of clowns. He is Chicago's most popular clown and magician and will put on a novelty act mystifying and amusing to adults as well as the children.

The Bazaar is under the leadership of Mrs. Milton Geuther, and comes at an opportune time for the people of this community to get their Christmas shopping done. Character dolls, doll clothes, tea towels, pot holders, aprons toys and all the various items that make up an interesting bazaar will be for sale.

Another interesting feature of the carnival will be a room of exhibits with Mrs. Frederick Whitlark as Chairman. Mrs. Whitlark will need the cooperation of all the people of the community to make this a worthwhile exhibit. Everyone has some article that is especially interesting, so why not share these treasures with one another. Whether it is a jar of canned goods, garden produce, hand work, antiques, souvenirs, or what have you, they will be interesting to your neighbor. These exhibits will be closely guarded and not handled by the public.

Please watch next week's News Bulletin for more details of this carnival and Bazaar.

Miss Jean Henke
of Tinley Pretty
Autumn Bride

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Sunday, October 14 at four o'clock, when Miss Jean Henke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Henke of Tinley Park was united in marriage with Ensign Eugene Anderson, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Hilding Anderson also of Tinley Park. The wedding took place in the bride's parents home, with Rev. Albert Buddenhagen, pastor of the Zion Lutheran church, Tinley Park officiating.

Miss Henke chose for her wedding gown, white satin, with a long train, a lace bertha and lace Dutch cap. Her veil was in three tiers and was caught with wax orange blossoms in her hair. The blossoms were worn by her grand mother 57 years ago. The bride's flowers were white roses and gypsophila.

Miss Virginia Rick was maid of honor. She wore an aqua taffetta and net gown with a tiara of yellow mums and carried yellow mums. Miss Carol Henke sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Her gown was of gold taffetta, and the tiara was of bronze mums with an arm bouquet of bronze baby mums.

Ensign Anderson was attended by Ensign Bill Franklin of Peoria, Ill. Both wore their Naval Air Corp Officers uniforms. Kenneth Fulton served as usher.

A wedding supper for the immediate families was served in the bride's home following the wedding where a beautiful 3 tiered wedding cake graced the center of the table. It was topped with a miniature bride and groom.

The bride's mother was dressed in gray and wore a corsage of pink roses, while Mrs. Anderson wore a dress of brown with a corsage of yellow roses.

Mr. Erickson was the organist and played a number of love songs before the ceremony.

Ensign and Mrs. Anderson will reside in Beeville, Texas where he is stationed.

Mokena Civic
Group Makes Start
On Local Project

Announcement was made at the meeting of the Mokena Civic Association Wednesday night that the Association has set aside the net proceeds of $1500 from the recent homecoming together with $800 previously accumulated, making a total of $2300 for the Veterans Memorial.

Plans are being made to continue increasing this fund so that the memorial can be erected at the earliest possible time.

Bingo parties are again going to be held the 17th of Nov. with poultry as prizes.

The Mokena Civic Association has since it was organized, been working toward bigger and better things for the community and should have the wholehearted cooperation of the community and surrounding territory.

It is an organization every man should join and they are inviting all to do so. Meetings are held the third Wednesday of each month at the Hatch hall. How about it Mokenaites, won't you join this worth while organization and help to make Mokena a bigger and better town?

Anyone wishing a copy sent by mail can secure one by mailing $1 and an additional 5c for mailing. This book will be valuable in years to come. If you have not bought a copy yet do so now before the limited supply on hand is exhausted.

Receives Jap Paper
From Yokohama

Yokohama, Japan, Sept. 28, 1945.

To Mokena News-Bulletin.
Dear Mr. Semmler:
I landed here at Yokohama docks yesterday. The industrial area surrounds Tokyo bay and it is in complete ruins.

We came in with a unit of the amphibious occupation forces. I am sending you a newspaper that I picked up in a ruined office building. I thought you might enjoy having it. I am hoping to be home by the first of the year.

I enjoy the News-Bulletin very much but it does not catch up with me very often.

Angelo De Pra.
Editor's Note: Thank you Angelo. I sure do appreciate receiving the Japanese newspaper, that was very kind of you to think of us. I hope some day to have it interpreted. We will be glad to show it to anyone interested. Mr. DePra is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kopelman of Homer.

TINLEY MAN HOME AFTER 3 YEARS OVERSEAS SERVICE

T/Sgt. John A. Lehmann has returned to his home in Tinley Park after receiving his honorable discharge September 20 at Truax Field, Madison, Wis.

He has been in service three years and 11 months, serving 32 months in the Southwest Pacific in Australia, New Guinea, and some smaller islands. He was a Platoon Sergeant in a Rifle Co., in the 32nd Div., Infantry.

John has seen much action, has spent many days in Fox holes and in his own words, has seen "Plenty of Japs", and fought them.

He had the pleasure of meeting two home town boys while in service, Sam Greco in Australia and Paul Schult in New Guinea.

T/Sgt. Lehmann has been awarded the Combat Infantry Badge, Presidential citation, American Defense Ribbon Asiatic Pacific ribbon, 3 combat stars and the Good Conduct medal.

MAKE APPEAL FOR CLOTHING COLLECTION

Mrs. Karl Ekberg, Occupational Therapy chairman for the Orland Park Woman's club is making an appeal for donations of stockings, underwear, old draperies, spreads, dresses, curtains etc. yarn, thread, buttons, rickrack, embroidery floss, bias tape warp, empty spools, small pieces of new material 1-4 yard up, scissors, magazines, puzzles, playing cards and spectacles. These can be used at Occupational Therapy shop at Oak Crest to make rugs, patterned, braided fluff made of cotton, silk or wool, stuffed toys aprons, knitting bags, carved wood toys and many other articles.

If you have any of the above mentioned discarded materials, bring them over to Mrs. Ekberg and she will see that they are sent to Oak Forest.

The patients at the Infirmary will be kept busy to wile away the time these long winter months.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Settlement of Oil Workers' Pay May Set Reconversion Pattern; Ease Curbs on Consumer Credit

Released by Western Newspaper Union
 (EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Their guns taken away, Jap naval shore patrolmen walk streets with wooden staves to maintain order among disarmed sailors in Tokyo.

LABOR:
U. S. Acts

Acting energetically, Secretary of Labor Lewis Schwellenbach took the all-important oil workers' wage dispute virtually in his own hands by transferring negotiations to Washington, D. C., in an effort to effect a settlement that was expected to set a pattern for the reconversion period.

With the Oil Workers' union demand for a 30 per cent wage increase embodying the program of other powerful CIO organizations, and with the oil companies' offer of a 15 per cent boost representing the usual compromise, final disposition of the case would go far toward determining the amount of "take-home" pay for employees during the ensuing months.

Schwellenbach's decision to shift the parley to Washington, D. C., from Chicago, Ill., followed upon an early deadlock in the bargaining over the union's insistence that the dispute be settled on an industry-wide basis and the companies' stand that contracts should be signed by individual plants.

Meanwhile, over 1,500,000 persons were affected by the strike of AFL elevator operators and building service employees in New York, with business losses running over $1,000,000 a day and production of winter and summer garments virtually stopped. Balking at a war labor board award of $28.05 for a 44 hour week, the union asked $30.15 for a 40 hour week.

JAPAN:

Historic Precedent

September 27, 1945, went down in history as the red-letter day on which a Japanese emperor, unbending himself in defeat, made a personal call upon a victorious U. S. commander to break all precedent.

God to his people, small, wiry Hirohito, in formal morning clothes and high silk top hat, was very much man to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who, steeped in occupational duties, met him in informal military attire and without a tie.

Motoring to the American embassy in Tokyo for the visit, Hirohito made his call just as MacArthur set about shaping plans for the re-education of the Japanese people and stripping Nippon of all its war-making potentialities by an economic reformation.

In recasting the Japanese mind, MacArthur chose to pursue the present policy of working through native personnel. Japanese press, radio, movies, government information bureaus, schools and various social groups would be used as mediums for the dissemination of democratic principles and ideals for world co-operation.

In Japan's economic reformation, the U. S. will strive for the eradication of all potential war industry, confining the Nipponese merely to civilian production. At the same time, efforts will be made to break up the business monopoly of the four great houses of Mitsubishi, Mitsu, Yussada, and Sumitomo, and promote widespread ownership and trade. Organization of labor and agricultural organizations also will be encouraged.

Meanwhile, Japanese economic experts called for a resumption of trade with the U. S. to speed Nippon's postwar recovery and stave off impending privation. In return for American cotton, wool, salt, oil, iron, sugar and leather the Japanese proposed exports of silk, gold, porcelain ware and lacquer goods.

TIRES:

Demand Mounts

While the production of new automobile tires is making fair progress, prospects for the elimination of tire rationing in the near future are not promising, according to the National Automobile Dealers association.

Although the tire industry is planning on the production of approximately 12 million tires between October and the end of the year, some will be reserved for new cars.

OIL:

U. S.-British Pact

Virtual monopolists in oil, the U. S. and Britain came to an understanding for the orderly development of petroleum trade in the post-war world in a pact fashioned in London by Secretary of the Interior Ickes and British officials and subject to senate ratification.

Removing vigorous opposition to any control over domestic production as envisaged in a previous agreement later repudiated by the U. S., the new pact only provides for advisory regulation of American and British operations overseas. Both countries have extensive oil holdings in foreign lands, notably in the middle east, where deposits are reportedly as great as in the U. S.

In drawing up the agreement, Ickes and British Fuel Administrator Shinwell provided for mutual respect of all concessions and rights obtained by either country, and also pledged non-interference with operations.

MEAT:

More Available

Because of the seasonal increase in the marketings of range fed cattle, OPA removed point requirements for lower grades of beef, veal and lamb through most of October, and also made hamburger, lamb and veal patties, short ribs and brisket of beef, breast and flank of lamb and shank of veal ration-free.

In addition, points were lifted from such low-grade meat products as sausage, frankfurters, luncheon variety and canned meats.

In contrast, however, the continued tight supply of hogs and finished cattle necessitated the retention of current point values on pork cuts, bacon and other cured meats, and choice selections of beef, veal and lamb. Though fats and oils were kept on the rationing list, point removal on cheaper meat will furnish additional stamps for these items.

Henry II Takes Over

To husky, 28-year-old Henry Ford II, who in college displayed more of a penchant for sociology than engineering, went the presidency of the huge Ford Motor company, following the retirement of his famed grandfather from active service with the firm.

Upon assuming his post, Henry II declared his ambition was to return Ford to leadership in sales again, the company having trailed Chevrolet throughout most of the decade preceding the war. On his toes, young Ford had shown the new 1946 model last July, only two days after government authorization for resuming civilian production, and the firm was well off to postwar output when impeded by strikes.

Retiring at 82 after having resumed the presidency of his famed company in June of 1943 upon the death of his son, Edsel, Ford declared that he would devote most of his energies to his outside interests, chief of which have been utilization of farm products in industry.

EUROPE:

Occupation Problem

In war or in peace, old General Patton, with a mind of his own continued to make news, the latest occasion being his clash with General Eisenhower over the use of competent former Nazi civil servants for a restoration of German economy to head off threatened chaos this winter.

Besides being asked for an immediate report on the number of former Nazis still holding office in 3rd army territory, Patton also was directed to give Eisenhower a personal accounting of his control over the Bavarian region. For a hard peace, Eisenhower favors a ruthless denazification of Germany's political, educational and economic life, and an early establishment of a Reich living standard no higher than surrounding countries.

Though the first to be called on the carpet, Patton's attitude is known to be shared by other U. S. officers seeking to avert starvation, frost suffering and epidemics this winter in the shattered nation.

FAR EAST:

Native Uprising

Even as Chinese and British forces took over Indo-China, native Annamites rose in rebellion at the prospect of a return of French rule, terrorizing the European population of the state, which normally exports much rice, rubber, high-grade coal, spices and tin.

Frenchmen were the principal targets of native wrath, since many, under protection of Chinese and British guns, have displaced Annamites holding public offices preliminary to re-establishment of French colonial rule.

Strangely enough, the Japanese, who promised Indo-Chinese independence during their military occupation of the country and still remain in force prior to their complete demobilization, have been called upon to help assist undermanned Allied units re-establish peace.

GOOD NEIGHBOR:

Aids Health

Remote, disease-plagued regions of the Amazon systems of Peru and Bolivia have been equipped by modern health measures to progress in human welfare.

The menace of malaria and other tropical diseases has been considerably lessened in the two countries by inauguration of hospitals and medical services by the U. S. and South American nations through the Institute of Inter-American affairs.

By VIRGINIA VALE

INGRID BERGMAN'S finished 7½ million dollars' worth of films, all Academy Award material, that haven't been released as yet. Two years ago she did "Saratoga Trunk," with Gary Cooper, but Warners' had a lot of war pictures on hand, so "Saratoga Trunk" was held up, may be released in February. Then she did "Spellbound," which may be out soon. After that came "The Bells of St. Mary's," with Bing, due at Christmas time. Now she's making "Notorious." Then she'll make another USO tour through the Pacific area; after that she'll go abroad for "The Scarlet Lily," to be made in Palestine and Jerusalem—it's supposed to be the life story of Mary Magdalene.

Alice Frost, radio's leading shudder-show charmer, has an album filled with horrible photos of herself—about to be murdered, screaming with fright, etc. One's signed "One of my fondest heroines, Boris Karloff." The pictures were taken on every mystery series she's starred on.

Dennis O'Keefe says it's an empty honor that stole up on him as he was finishing his co-starring role in "Getting Gertie's Garter"—the optometrists of Westwood, Calif., voted him the man "best suited to wear glasses"—which he doesn't!

Maj. Allen Martini, whose Flying Fortress, "Dry Martini," holds the world's record for shooting down 15 German planes in 22 minutes, makes his screen debut as an officer of a B-29 in "The Bamboo Blonde." He was production assistant on RKO's "The Falcon's Alibi," and during his college days was identified with Little Theater groups at Palo Alto.

Producer Edward Small, planning to make "The Life of Valentino," can't decide whether to hand the choice role to a star or an unknown. Unknowns have done all right in big parts—Cornel Wilde in "A Song to Remember," Robert Alda in "A Rhapsody in Blue," Jennifer Jones in "The Song of Bernadette." On the other hand, Paramount gambled—to the tune of a million or so—on Isa Miranda, in "Hotel Imperial," and lost, as did Goldwyn with Anna Sten. Still, Small is inclined to take a chance on the man who'll play Valentino.

Reconversion is here on the air as well as in industry, especially in "Superman." He was doing fine with the atom last year, till war department officials asked him to lay off, for reasons of military security. So now he's set to do things with Kryptonite, more powerful than Uranium, with the problems of establishing peace in the world uppermost in his mind.

Robert Cummings will never forget certain scenes in "The Bride Wore Boots," in which he co-stars with Barbara Stanwyck. They were made on location at Hidden Valley, with the temperature past the 100-degree mark. In the script it was Christmas. So Bob wore a heavy, well-padded suit, and a beard, regardless of the blistering sun—he was being Santa Claus.

Fast work on the part of actor-soldier Patrick Lee landed him a screen role while enjoying a two-week furlough. He took a bus from Camp Roberts to Hollywood, hitchhiked to Warners', and by noon was before the cameras in "Her Kind of Man," with Faye Emerson, Zachary Scott and Dane Clark. He said the best part of the job was wearing a blue serge suit for the first time in over two years.

ODDS AND ENDS—Parkyakarkus is grateful for the publicity—a soldier wrote him from a Louisiana army camp that on a certain night recently the password was "Meet Me at Parky's." . . . Best kept secret in Hollywood's radio circles was the recent appearance of Bing Crosby's boys on the opening Frank Sinatra program—it was kept for ten days before the broadcast. . . . "Mr. District Attorney" leads the list of first fifteen evening "Network Hoopoes." . . . Jerry Colonna's first film role since his return from an overseas tour with Bob Hope is in the Disney "Make Mine Music"—singing "Casey at the Bat."

Aircraft Engines

The expansion of aircraft engine production facilities from July, 1940, to June, 1944, exceeded air-frame factory expansion by 10 per cent, indicating the pressing need for increased engine production following Pearl Harbor. The advent of four-motored bombers and the expanded production of multi-engine types placed a tremendous load on engine production.

Garden Superstition

As late as 1740, people in New England thought potatoes would shorten men's lives and make them unhealthy.

Air Conditioned Trolleys

A fleet of new street cars in Atlanta, Ga., has been equipped with refrigerating units. This will be the first time that passengers can enjoy the benefits of air conditioning.

Cows Need Rest

Every cow needs a rest period of six to eight weeks if she is to produce the most milk during her next milking period.

Bacteria Threat

An improperly cleaned milking machine may add millions of bacteria to the fresh milk that passes through the machine.

LIGHTER MOMENTS with fresh Eveready Batteries

"Hey, I said send up some quinine, not K-9!"

UNTIL RECENTLY, our entire production of "Eveready" "Mini-Max" batteries went to the Armed Forces for use in walkie-talkies, handy-talkies, and other vital communications equipment.

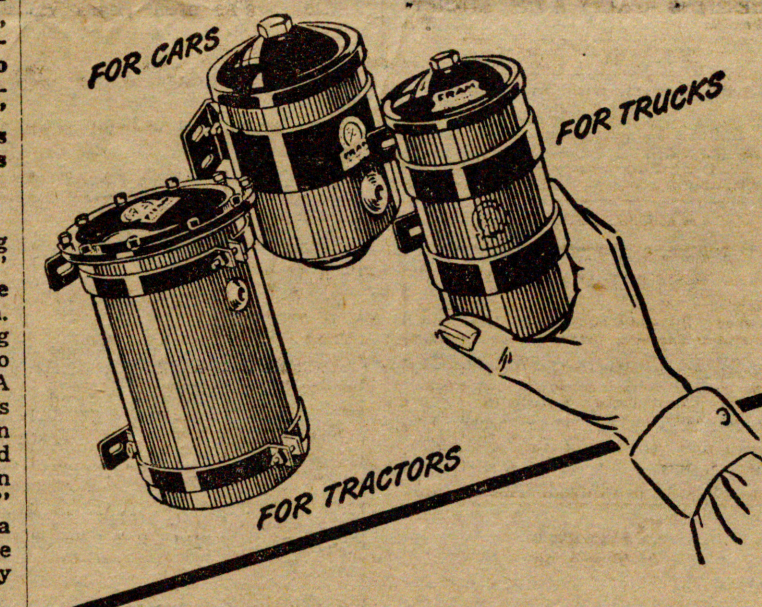

Now—although military needs continue to come first—substantial numbers of these extra-powerful "B" batteries are available for civilian use.

Remember: their exclusive construction makes "Mini-Max" batteries size for size the most powerful batteries ever built. In your radio, they deliver longer life—longer listening!

ARMY SEEKS MISSING

Army "search teams" are combing the battlefields of Europe and the Pacific for personnel now listed as missing.

Consisting of five soldiers, one of whom speaks the language of the locality, search teams are assigned a certain area of approximately one and one-half square miles. Information on missing personnel is consolidated to speed investigation.

Born Far-Sighted

Most babies are born far-sighted. But nearly half of all adults reaching the age of 40 years are near-sighted.

Hospital Cases

A recent survey of a large city's hospitals showed 10 per cent of its beds occupied by accidentees.

Varieties of Plums

About 1,500 varieties of plums have been described in horticultural literature in America.

AN INNER SANCTUM MYSTERY
STARRING ARAB AND ANDY BLAKE WNU FEATURES

CHAPTER I

Wartime Washington was quite restful until my wife Arab arrived. Of course, there had been a certain upsetting quality about it, like living inside a concrete mixer, but until Arab came there had been positively no chance for me to win a decoration for valor . . . posthumously.

Like most of Arab's actions, her arrival in Washington was unannounced. I was sitting at my desk studying the latest A-2 cables from my theater. As usual they didn't give the answers to half the questions the General was sure to ask; nobody could answer all his questions short of the German High Command. You can't, however, tell a general please to refer his questions to the German High Command, and so I was worrying along and not noticing things . . . including what felt vaguely like something brushing the back of my neck.

A voice behind me complained, "Even if there are eight girls to every man in Washington, when I kiss one I expect him at least to realize he's got company."

I jumped up and gasped "Arab!" and grabbed her. My colonel cleared his throat like a B-24 warming up and remembered an errand down the corridor, my one fourth of a secretary dove into the files, and my two majors picked up their telephones and called each other. I held Arab's slim body closely and for a minute the grim mass of the Pentagon seemed to spin and dip like a rickety merry-go-round.

She pushed me back to arm's length, finally, and laughed chokily and said, "Oh, Andy, it's been so long and if you'd been overseas I could have managed but I couldn't stand it just a hundred and forty miles away and—"

"I should have dragged you down here by the hair two months ago," I said, "but you were being patriotic and saying useless people shouldn't move to Washington and . . . and you are going to stay, aren't you? Aren't you?"

"Really want me?"
"I'll give you my rubber heels," I babbled. "I'll take my old-fashioned without sugar. They can have the car for scrap. I won't deduct you from my income tax. I'll be patriotic any other way but—"

"Oh, we're still patriotic, darling."

"Swell. How?"
"I'm not going to be useless. See?"

She flipped the identification tag she was wearing. It was the type they hand out to new employees for use until their photograph badges are ready.

"Gosh! Does that mean you're going to work here?"
"Uh-huh. I'm going to take a job as a secretary."

That ended the pause for romance. You can whisper "Here comes the General" or "Greer Garson's in the corridor" and cause less general disturbance than if you say "Here's a girl looking for a job as a secretary." My one fourth of a secretary looked up from her files as if she had heard the first words of a new Emancipation Proclamation. My majors dropped their phones and swung around wolfishly. My colonel got back in the room and up to his like a Commando heading for an objective.

"Where did you sign up?" I asked grimly.

"Well, Andy, it was this way. I just happened to—"

"Where did you sign up?"

"All right. With Ordinance."

"Oh, Lord," I said. "Shotguns were bad enough around the house. Now it'll be bazookas."

"I'm awfully sorry," Arab said, "but I'd pay tuition to work for Ordinance."

The chief's fist hit the desk like an antipersonnel bomb. "It's an outrage," he said. "I won't stand for it! How do they expect us to operate? Either they get me another girl of I put in for a transfer. Four officers and one secretary, and we can't get half the work out. I'd trade two officers for a good typist. Throw myself in too. Ordinance! Guns!" He took a deep breath, then growled, "Got a place to live?"

"N-not yet."

"What's Blake thinking of, letting you come to Washington before he gets a place for you? You'd better start looking. Good-by, Mrs. Blake. Clear out, Blake. Help her get settled."

"I can't take Andy away from the war," Arab protested.

"Young lady," the colonel said, "finding a place to live in Washington is twice as tough as winning this war. And," he added gloomily, "it may take twice as long."

I grabbed my service cap and we sneaked out of the office, while behind us Colonel Parker was starting to complain that he personally would throttle the next man who showed him a secretary he couldn't have.

"Sure," I said, "I'm glad to see you. The way a guy's glad to see his right arm when he wakes up in the morning. The way he's glad there's enough air to breathe. The way . . . look, I can't say these things properly."

"You could try. You could start courting me all over again. You only spent about two weeks at it last spring, Andy, and I always felt a little cheated."

"Cheated?" I said. "How about me on our honeymoon? You got us in a shooting scrape so fast we almost used the wedding flowers for a joint funeral."

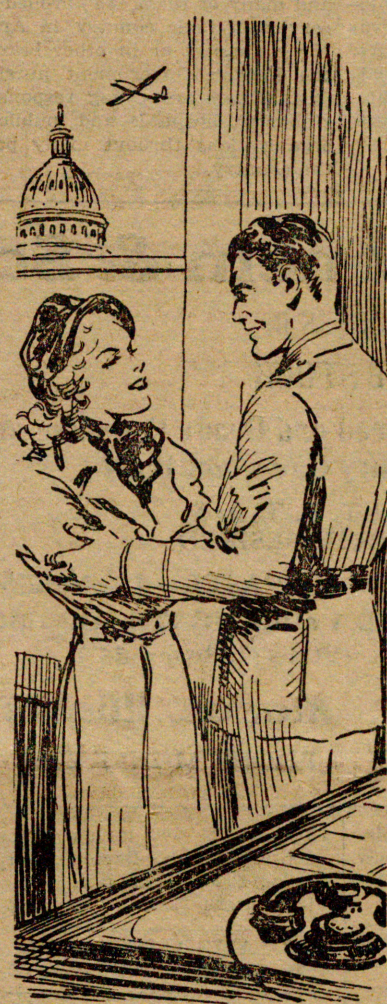

"You needed to be stirred up, Andy. You were turning into a vegetable. You were in a rut."

"Vegetables are in furrows."

"And I'm afraid," she said, looking at me seriously, "you're in one now. You've been here two months. You're still a first lieutenant. No citations. No ribbons. Not even a badge for pistol marksmanship."

I growled, "The way I handle guns I'll get a pistol badge and a military funeral at the same time."

"You're getting fat, Andy. I bet your joints are starting to creak."

"Oh, Andy, it's been so long—"

"In other words, meet Lieutenant Blake of the Chair-Borne Infantry. No hero. Just a guy doing a job that calls for a uniform. I know all that. What am I supposed to do about it?"

"I don't know yet, darling. But I'm going to find out. Ummm, how is the war getting on?"

"All right, I guess."

She said softly, "This is October, 1942. The Japs may take back Guadalcanal. The Germans have half of Stalingrad. The war's getting on all right, he guesses."

I gulped.

"He's glad to see me the way a man's glad to see his right arm in the morning. In other words, he takes it for granted as long as it's there."

"Look—"

"Andy Blake, you're not going to take me for granted. And you're not going to guess the war's getting along all right. You're going to start worrying about things. I don't know how I'm going to do it, but I'm going to prove you if I have to use dynamite."

I shivered. Arab really means things like that. "It's getting near six," I mumbled. "Can we have dinner first? I understand the troops often get a final hot meal before the jump-off."

She squeezed my arm. "I do love you, Andy. So much that it aches. And we'll get a nice apartment and have fun even if I do have to stir you up."

"No apartment," I said glumly. "I got a feeling we better rent a fox-hole."

We walked silently through the building a half mile to South Parking, where the temporary bus terminal was still located. It had been raining lightly all afternoon and Arab had come prepared for it with an umbrella and white raincoat. We had to wait outside a while to get a Twelfth and Pennsylvania bus. Arab tried to lend me her umbrella. I explained loftily that umbrellas were contrary to the customs of the service, and Arab began worrying about me catching cold and I began feeling better.

We went to O'Donnell's for dinner and had Shrimp Norfolk and that cheered me up even more. Then we tackled the problem of finding Arab a place to sleep. She had come down with only a suitcase, which she had checked at Union Station, and she hadn't made an attempt to wire ahead for a room. Probably it wouldn't have mattered; you have to be entered for a Washington hotel room almost at birth, like getting into Groton or St. Paul's. I was rooming with a family out near Falls Church, in Virginia; they might put Arab up for the night in an emergency, but it would be better to get her a place of her own.

We checked the newspapers and made a few phone calls and located a couple of possibilities way out in Chevy Chase. That made us feel very gay and carefree, and we boarded an L-5 bus for the Circle and I had no suspicion that it was the last carefree moment I'd have for a long time.

Riding a Washington bus in any of the rush hours is like holding a wrestling match in a revolving door. You don't even dare let out your breath all the way because then they'll get somebody else in the bus and you have to give up inhaling until somebody gets off.

The bus had traveled only a few blocks when Arab gripped my hand and whispered, "Did you hear what that man said? The one behind me?"

"No. What?"

"Something about shipping locomotives to England. I think he mentioned twenty."

"That's not so good," I muttered. "People talk too much."

We listened a moment, and a girl's voice cut across the babble, saying, " . . . and he always used to write three times a week so when Jane told me that, I said, Jane, if you haven't had a letter in two weeks those parachute boys have moved out and his next letter will have an APO number on . . ."

Arab whispered, "Are they crazy? Don't they even know how to read?" She pointed up. Right in front of the man talking about locomotives was a car ad reading: NEVER DISCUSS MILITARY OR NAVAL INFORMATION IN A PUBLIC VEHICLE. Arab went on, "Is there much of this kind of loose talk?"

"Yeah, I suppose so," I said. "Something ought to be done about it."

"It ought to . . . and it's going to be, right now!"

"Now listen, Arab," I said uneasily, "you've got to take things easier. A lot of people are working on this business of loose talk, and—"

"And maybe I can help them! I'm going through this bus and listen to what people are saying and make notes. And I'm going to write letters to newspapers and do a report for everybody high up I can think of and make speeches and everything."

I tried to calm her, without success. She dug out a pocket notebook and a stubby pencil and scrawled a few lines of symbols. It was my introduction to the Arabella Blake shorthand system: a method which combined the worst features of Pitman, Gregg, and the way Arab marks checkbook stubs.

"You stay here," she said. "I'm going to work my way up to the front of the bus."

She wriggled two feet up the aisle and paused. She swayed there, looking like a dreamy schoolgirl. If I hadn't been watching for it, I'd never have seen her make a few quick notes. You wouldn't have thought she was interested in anything more important than the relative merits of chocolate nut sundaes and malteds with ice-cream floats. In a few minutes she had edged her way up the aisle out of my sight.

Gradually I began to realize that something was wrong. I couldn't figure what. The Big Capital Transit bus was still rocketing up Connecticut Avenue through its bright tunnel of raindrops. Voices still chattered . . . but there was a difference. The passengers didn't seem the same. It was almost as if I had been transferred, while I drowsed, to a bus filled with utter strangers. The impression was so strong that I looked carefully at nearby faces. They hadn't changed.

Here in the middle of Washington, in a brightly lit bus filled with middle-aged civil-service workers and government girls and housewives and businessmen, a witch hunt was assembling. Sixty normal people were being slowly fused into a mob. A mob with one idea. Shreds of talk whipped by my ears like leaves in a gale.

"It was a girl . . ."

" . . . while I was talking about Jane she . . ."

" . . . standing right by me and listening . . ."

" . . . a girl in a white raincoat . . ."

" . . . listening to every word I said . . ."

"I was telling you about that British carrier and she had a notebook and . . ."

"I peeked down and she was writing in some kind of code."

" . . . a girl in a white . . ."

"She's up in the front of the bus now . . ."

" . . . listening to every word I said . . ."

MAKING THE HOME CHRISTIAN

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:38-42; I Corinthians 13:4-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—Love suffereth long, and is kind.—I Corinthians 13:4.

Things do not just happen. It takes praying and planning and real effort to accomplish a worth-while purpose. We are thinking these weeks of the home as a Christian center of influence. We trust that many are asking in their hearts, "What can I do to make my home really Christian?"

The answer is clear. A home will be Christian when those in it are Christian and put their Christianity into daily practice. First, you must be sure of your own salvation and that of the members of your household. Then you can proceed to put the principles of godliness to work.

Our lesson presents the believing home as one that is well-balanced. There is both:

I. Work and Worship (Luke 10:38-42).

No home can be a place of comfort and pleasant fellowship without much work. A disorderly, dirty or run-down house is a disgrace and a discouragement to all that is finest in the relations of those who live in it.

Home need not be a mansion. It does not have to be richly furnished, but it does need to be clean and orderly. Meals must be made. Cleaning must be done. So far Martha was right, but she went too far. She let the labor of the household hinder her from what she so deeply needed—fellowship, not only with her family but with the Lord.

Now, notice that Mary had not shirked her duty to share the work. Observe the word "also" in verse 39. She had worked, but she also sat at Jesus' feet. She knew when it was time to call a halt to labor and make the most of good comradeship. Blessed wisdom! Would that many burdened housewives would learn of Mary!

Jesus made it clear that life in the home is to strike a proper balance between work and worship. If you do not know where to make the division in your home, err on the side of worship. Give that more time than it should have rather than less.

Alas, is it not true that in most homes, even in Christian homes, worship is almost, if not entirely, forgotten! Something should be done about that. Will you do it in your home?

II. Love and Longsuffering (I Cor. 13:4-7).

We are apt to think of love as the warm feeling of interest and emotion which suffuses one's nature in moments of special pleasantness or of intimate fellowship. But life is not made up of a succession of pleasant incidents, of sunny afternoons and moonlit evenings.

Life is real; it is earnest, and often it is drab and irritating. What about such times? Can love meet them? Yes, for love knows how to be longsuffering.

But someone may ask, Does love really work, or is this just a fine-sounding but obsolete theory? It works!

Think of the things in life which irritate and depress us. Then put opposite them the qualities of Christian love as given in verses 4 to 7, and you will agree that what this world needs most of all is love.

Remember that talking about love, or reading about it, or studying it in the Sunday school will not make it effective. We must put it into practice. Why not start now? You will be surprised at the results.

III. Promise and Perfection (vv. 8-13).

Christianity has a hope, and that is not just a vague wishing that something might come to pass; it is a sure hope. In Christ all the rich promise of prophecy, of faith, of hope will come to pass.

The Christian home is the place to teach boys and girls to believe with assurance that He who has begun a good work in us "will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ" (Phil. 1:6).

We who see only dimly shall one day see our Lord face to face, and love shall abide through all eternity.

Many gifts are only temporary in their usefulness; in fact, almost everything that man makes or does (apart from his service for God) is transient.

Even as vital a matter as prophecy shall one day find its end in fulfillment. Hope shall eventually find its longing expectation satisfied. Faith will be justified in seeing what it has believed. Childish things will be put away by the full-grown man; knowledge will increase and darkness disappear.

But love—love is eternal. It never fails, and will never fail. God is love, and God is eternal. From all eternity and unto all eternity love continues. Therefore, we agree with Paul who, in the verse preceding this chapter (I Cor. 12:31) says that while you may covet the best gift, here is the more excellent way

Fires Costly

Every day in the U. S. there are 1,800 fires, 28 deaths caused by fire in 1,000 homes, 130 stores, 100 factories, 7 churches, 7 schools and 3 hospitals.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

Post-war automobiles may ride on rubber springs which will eliminate noise and the necessity for lubrication. B. F. Goodrich has supplied over half a million rubber springs for military landing vehicles.

B. F. Goodrich is now making tires of a new kind of synthetic rubber. The new rubber makes tires wear longer.

Since cotton is of almost equal importance with rubber in the manufacture of tires, the rubber industry is one of the biggest customers of the Agricultural South.

Steel and brass are used in the manufacturing of ordinary passenger car tires.

Tinley Park News

2nd Lt. Clarence J. Fisher, Inf., of Tinley Park, Ill., was separated from the army at Camp Butler, N. C. recently.

Lt. Fisher is now on terminal leave and will revert to inactive status on 20 Oct. 1945.

Names of persons from Tinley Park who have been pledged to membership in Greek letter fraternities and sororities at the University of Illinois have been announced by Dean of Men and Dean of Women.

Twenty nine fraternities and 23 sororities are active at the campus this fall. These organizations maintain houses in which their members live during the school year. Membership is by invitation, and persons selected are "pledged" to membership for a period before being initiated to full membership. Among new pledges to sororities are: Dorothy Buzzard, 7112 W. 173rd Place, Alpha Delta Pi.

Miss June Miller underwent a tonsillectomy at Silver Cross hospital last Monday. She is home now and feeling fine.

1st Lt. Ray Mason Jr., together with his wife and son, arrived home last Monday. He left Saturday for Chanute Field where he will be discharged on points.

The business meeting of the VFW Auxiliary 2791 was held October 10, 1945 in the Bremen Veterans hall at 8:00 pm. with President L. Brandriff presiding.

The meeting was held in due form. The hospital work for October will be a treat and for November, a Thanksgiving Party. Sister Ethel Cupp was appointed Rehabilitation and Red Cross chairman, and Sister Alfreda Willman was appointed Publicity Ch.

Sisters M. Maxwell and L. Brandriff thanked the members for their help at the Centennial and parade.

The social meeting will be held on October 24 and the hostesses are Sisters V. Carr and H. Johnson.

Alfreda Willman, Publicity

Wallace W. Mohr, radio technician 2c USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edw. J. Mohr, Tinley Park served on the heavy cruiser USS Chester when she helped occupy the Hokkaido-Amomori Omato area of northern Japan.

The Chester, with other fleet units, steamed thru Tsugaru Strait and Sept. 8 anchored a short distance from Omato Naval Base.

The cruiser saw action in the Marshalls, Wake, Marcus, Guadalcanal, Iwo Jima, Tarawa, Wotje, the Battle of the Coral Sea, Tulagi, the Alutians, Paramushiro, Chichi Jima, the Battle for Leyte Gulf and operations in the East China Sea.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ziegler entertained Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lemke of Alpine in their home Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Diekmann and son Billy left Monday for Fairmont, Minn., where they will visit relatives.

Miss Lucille Byrne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Callis, 1834 Le Claire Ave. Tinley Park, was one of a group of young women who enrolled in the Cook County School of Nursing, Chicago on Sept. 24. Miss Byrne is a member of the Cadet Nurse Corps.

The three year course combines formal classroom instruction with actual practice in caring for patients in the American Red Cross Nursing Service and many of them are enrolled in the service of their country in Army and Navy nursing or in other branches of the Federal Government nursing services. Others are filling responsible positions in hospitals and public health organizations thruout many parts of the country.

Off the Runway

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-B
by 2nd Lt. Erlayne Conel

Civil Air Patrol Announcement: Senior Members will meet in the new CAP Clubhouse at Rubinkam Airport, the first Sunday of each month, promptly at 1 pm.

Howell Airport: As a prelude to the Air Show held at Rubinkam last Saturday and Sunday, I hopped a Cub from Rubinkam to Howell Airport. Its six miles and 320 degrees by skyways, and two streets over and to the South of the Canal via Terra Firma.

Getting into the field is a little like forcing your foot into a tight shoe. After carefully clearing trees and wires along a road, I side slipped onto the N. W. runway. Once downstairs, I couldn't help recognize rosy and rotund Willie Howell, the airport owner. But, when I asked for news, Mr. Howell put out, he'd spent all his years in business trying to keep out of newspapers. We recovered slightly when he gave out with this information. He has five flyers and eleven of his own planes. Questioned as to the length of runways, he said you could squeeze three thousand feet out of the one I landed on, if you turned right a piece when you came to the corn field. (That tip should come in handy in case you want to avoid a corn landing!)

For your airport data: From observation: Howell Airport has three hangars, one skymarked with the word Howell, and with an arrow pointing to Municipal. There are three runways, slightly uneven and reported muddy during the rainy season. Flight Office is clean, personnel pleasant, line service excellent.

But say, Willie if you don't like publicity, HOWELL you let folks know about improvements you are making, and the fact that you offer Primary and Advanced Flight Training. And that you can give the test for Private License!

Dr. Maier mentioned a proposal to extend the facilities of Bringing Christ to the Nations to embrace many ships in the United States Navy that are without a chaplain, and he gave an account of the work of the broadcast among the nation's armed forces.

Highlights! Civil Air Patrol's Victory Air Shows had beauty, thrills and tragedy. For sheer, indescribable beauty look to the graceful soaring of a glider. George Hill was the pilot as a Schweizer Sailplane was cut loose over the crowd at 4,000 feet. George who would rather fly a silent glider than any powered plane, illustrated his delight by putting the glider into a spin, and a series of loops. The fragile glider, with its fifty two foot wingspread, seemed like a silver gull, than anything capable of carrying man. The last loop, right in front of the reviewing stand, was started at an altitude of about 290 feet. At its conclusion George turned the glider in small radius, and maneuvered into a landing, so gentle, it would make a bird envious.

For thrills you had your pick of many features. An outstanding demonstration of formation flying and aerobatics was made by Navy men: Ensign R. E. Conrad, L. E. Kershner and R. M. Bergdahl with their crew AMM2-c's Alan Mitchell, Robt. Koster and Wm. McCready; and by local flyers, Rubinkam Instructors Roy Cleveland, Ray Starzyk, and Commercial Pilot Buddy Ogden, and Flight Leader, Lt. Shorty LaBelle of Washington Park. Three parachute jumps were made by veteran jumper Mike Burson and Warrant Officer Floyd Orrington. Mike made a delayed jump, falling an estimated three thousand feet, before pulling his rip chord. Floyd who made his 11th jump on Saturday, 12th on Sunday, says happily that his biggest thrill in life is jumping. It makes him happy as a cat with four kittens (is that good?)

Tragedy struck Sunday at beautiful Ty Barnes Cassidy an Instructress from Lockport Field. She suffered an accident on the heels on a spectacular snap roll. I am happy that latest reports give her condition, barrin m scratches and shock, as excellent. Best wishes Ty. And to the layman, may I point out that stunt flying put on before an airshow audience presents hazards never encountered in everyday flying.

Sidelights: The Cadets demonstrated the training CAP offers the Youth of America, by handling the Airshow crowds with skill and efficiency. They had a pretty good time too, what with Jeeps and Walkie Talkies.

You folks can be proud of your neighbors. While the Air Shows were a Statewide event, the performers were mostly local talent.

That's all for now.

HARVEST OF STARS IS NEW INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER PROGRAM

International Harvester Co., offers what may be considered a new concept in radio entertainment in its Harvest of Stars, which went on the air over all NBC stations for a half hour broadcast at 2:00 pm. Eastern Time, Sunday, October 7, and regularly thereafter.

Woven in a dramatic and musically colorful pattern are the people, places and events that are America, under the talented hand of Raymond Massey, in the dual role of narrator and actor. With him will be noted Howard Barlow as conductor of the seventy piece International Harvester Orchestra. A choir of twenty mixed voices, under the direction of famed choral leader Lyn Murray, will lend vocal support to the production.

Alpine

by Mrs. Roy Lembke
Telephone Orland 53J2

Guests of the Leo Scharfs last Sunday were Mr. Scharf's aunt Mrs. Catherine Selbige and his brother from Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Scharf and Mary and their guests enjoyed the delicious turkey dinner and Festival at St. Michael's Catholic church in Orland.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hollstein of Frankfort visited Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Sayers.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lembke visited last Tuesday evening with the latter's sister Peg Rumatz, who underwent a major operation in the St. Bernard's hospital in Chicago, Monday. She had been seriously ill, but is improving nicely now.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lozaw enjoyed the company of Judge and Mrs. H. Adams of Arlington Heights. In the afternoon they attended the Tinley Park Centennial and reported having had a wonderful time.

Mr. and Mrs. Mat Krsek entertained in their home Sunday afternoon and evening in honor of their nephew, Seaman Cook Frank Vrablic, who is home on a seven day furlough from Miami, Fla. He served over 2 years in the ETO and expects his discharge in a few months. Other guests were Miss Dolores Slama, Frank's sister Mary Vrablic and his parents the Anthony Vrablics from Chicago.

Mr. L. S. Janes was a business visitor in St. Louis Monday.

Mrs. Donald McDonald and family are moving to Minneapolis, Minn. this week. The new owners are from Chicago who plan to move here soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Molde and daughters Bernetta and Bernadine of Oak Lawn and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Todd of Chicago were Monday visitors in the Lembke home. The Todds took Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lembke to see their new prospective home site in Homer Twp.

Mrs. Chas. Erickson entertained Sunday Mrs. May Johnson and her friend from Minneapolis, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bernard and family, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Erickson, the Herbert Coopers, Art Maues, Mrs. H. Lozaw and the Richard Ericksons were among those from Alpine who attended Mrs. Herman Lahmann's funeral Sunday afternoon in Christ Lutheran church in Orland.

Mrs. Lawrence Doctor and Mrs. Robt. Uthe were hostesses to the Orland Twp. Home Bureau Tuesday evening, Oct. 9. Members present were the Mesdames Helen Sayers, Florence Sayers, Olive Emerson, Mabel Stellwagon, Katherine Ihlenfeld, Matilda

Erickson, Helen Lembke, Frances Lozaw, Mildred Shroats, Vivian Maue, Gertrude Pihl, and Lucille Uthe also one associate member Mrs. Lawrence Doctor.

In the absence of Mrs. Dowling, Mrs. K. Ihlenfeld gave the 4H club report and mentioned that her group of girls, the Orland Girls 4H had contributed $6.50 toward a State 4H Memorial Camp in honor of the State 4H members who lost their lives in service.

Orland Home Bureau members are proud to sponsor two lively groups of 4H girls especially since both clubs have County Outstanding members this year. They are: Alice Ihlenfeld of the Orland Girls 4H club and Patricia Dowling and Marilyn Pihl of the Orland Cloverettes 4H club.

Vivian Maue presented the Major project on Efficient Kitchens and the Minor project Suggested Xmas Gifts, was an exchange of ideas among the members.

After the meeting two interesting guessing games were played under the supervision of Mrs. Lester Sayers and refreshments were served by Mrs. Emerson and Mrs. Ihlenfeld.

The next meeting will be Tuesday evening Nov. 6 in the home of Mrs. Harry Lozaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Emerson visited Friday evening in Chicago with their daughter and family. Dorothy Ruth and Jimmy Sanborn accompanied their grandparents home and spent a lovely weekend in Alpine.

Mr. L. S. Janes reports that the foot which he injured some time ago is completely healed and he can now get around again as usual.

Capt. Maurice Phelan made his wife Viola and his two year old daughter Maureen very happy when he arrived home this week on a 30 day furlough.

Capt. Phelan was in the Engineering Corp in the ETO and served in Belgium and Germany. He received a special citation for bravery, when he led a group of 6 engineers on a daring mission under heavy fire and saved the great Schwammenquell Dam from being blown up by the enemy in Belgium on the Roer River. When Capt. Phelan arrived home his family surprised him by having purchased the former Jack Wendell property next to Mrs. Whalen's parents, the Tom Powers on 168 St. and Wolf Rd. Their home is occupied at present by the John Gormans.

Capt. and Mrs. Phelan and Maureen plan to live in Alpine as soon as he receives his discharge. Mrs. Phelan is a niece of Mrs. Leo Scharf.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Francis and two children arrived home last Thursday from a most enjoyable four weeks vacation at Hudson, Kansas with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Witt and other relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Felsch and Mr.

Henry Felsch were Sunday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lewis and the latter's mother, Mrs. Carrie Hipple in Chicago. Mrs. Henry Felsch, Patsy and Sandy were unable to attend since the children were ill with bad colds. They are much better now.

Correction please: Miss Mary Dziak celebrated her 20th birthday Saturday Oct. 6 instead of the 19th as was previously printed.

Mrs. B. Sayers enjoyed the company Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sayers and the latter's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Doctor who are guests here from Stuttgart, Ark.

Mrs. Ernest Hambrick and Raymond, Wm., Jack and Lynn spent last Sunday in Beverly Hills with Mrs. Hambrick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Blake.

Mrs. Chas. Erickson's brother, Theo. Albert died Sunday evening in Mexico, while he and his wife were there on a visit. He had been in good health and passed away suddenly while sitting with his wife in the hotel where they were staying.

Mrs. Chas. Erickson visited Thursday evening in Chicago with her daughters Mrs. Loretta Dempsey of Chicago and Mrs. Bernard Benton of Traverse City, Mich.

Farm Bureau, Home Bureau members, families and friends don't forget to attend 4H Recognition Night which will be held Thursday evening, Nov. 1 at the Lutheran school on Grove St. in Blue Island. Everyone is invited. A University specialist will lead the recreation.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lembke spent Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ziegler in Tinley Park.

Joseph Mitera of Cicero spent Sunday with his cousins the Alex Mitera family in Alpine.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Erickson visited in Green Garden Sunday evening with Mr. Erickson's brother Elmer Erickson and family. They spent the evening playing pinocle, after which delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. Henry Tilsey, Dorothy Tilsey and Clarence Creer of Orland and LeRoy Carlson accompanied Ralph Tilsey to the Union Depot in Chicago last Thursday evening where Ralph entered for Camp Grant. He expects to be discharged from service sometime this week and hopes to be home by Oct. 18 or 19th.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cooper of LaGrange were recent visitors in the Ralph and Harwood Stellwagon home.

Friends and neighbors have been anxiously watching a Philippine Lily in the Lembke garden which had reached the height of 5 1/2 feet and has 6 beautiful large white blossoms and 6 buds. Everyone had hoped it would bloom before the first killing frost, but its first blossoms opened 2 days later, with no harm done by the frosts or cold weather.

Mrs. Bessie Dykman received a letter from her daughter WAC Sgt. Dorothy who is in Manila. Dorothy says they have lots of rain now and the days are very hot and the nights so cold that they need heavy blankets. So far she is enjoying Manila very much. She is glad to know also that her mother is feeling much better.

MOKENA

WELCOME HOME

It is so much nicer to report our Servicemen coming home than to address and wrap their issue of this paper to them each week as we have done for the past four years. This week we have several more who are home for good.

Captain George Phelps arrived home last Sunday to Mokena and he likes this little village so well that he never wants to leave it again.

Capt. Phelps was a member of the Reserve Officers, and he was called in to service July 1941 and was placed in the field artillery department. In a very short time he was sent to Hawaii with the 627th Tank Destroyer's Battalion where he instructed in the Pacific Combat Training center. In the two years in this center they put through 250 thousand troops, at the rate of 4,500 each week. These young lads, most of them being around 20 years old, went directly into combat from this center.

After two years of instructing at this place, Capt. Phelps was transferred to the Rangers and Combat School where he was Director of Training.

After 35 months in the Hawaii Islands he came home this past May on a 30 day furlough at the end of which he reported to Camp Maxey, Texas, he wife and young son accompanying him. He was transferred to Camp Sill, Okla., and then back to Camp Maxey where he was honorably discharged last Friday, Oct. 12. He has 96 points and wears the Asiatic, American Theatre, and American Defense ribbons. Mr. and Mrs. Phelps and young son arrived at their home in Mokena Sunday and is enjoying a well earned vacation.

Before entering the service, Capt. Phelps was a chemist at Armour's in Chicago.

Another honorably discharged Serviceman is Cpl. Wm. Morgan, husband of the former Miss Genevieve Pfleger of Mokena. Cpl. Morgan has been in the Service four years and for the past 11 months was in action in the E.T.O. with the field artillery. Combat took him in France, and Germany where he crossed the Roehr river, and many many other places. He arrived in Boston last Sunday, then to Ft. Sheridan and arrived in Mokena Sunday on a 9 day furlough at the end of which time he will return to Ft. Sheridan to receive his discharge. His wife arrived in Mokena Monday from Chesterton, Ind. Their little son, who has been staying with Cpl. Morgan's parents in Joliet is also with his parents now in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Pfleger.

The Wendell Hamilton family have moved into the former Borgess home recently vacated by the Kessler family.

Dr. E. G. McMahon is on a hunting trip to Tennessee. He is expected home this week.

Mrs. L. G. Bruder is slowly recovering from a severe attack of asthma. Miss Betty Bruder is enjoying a vacation with her brother, Wish, at San Antonio, Texas.

Mrs. Edna Tooley was a guest of Mrs. Catherine Provic last Saturday evening.

Cooper & Hostert's V-8s had their motors tuned up in high as they downed the Robins for two games. Haag with a 531 series and high game of 211 set the V-8's pace along with Neithamer and Hamilton.

Mokena Wallpaper Co., checked the Bankers climb when they took two games from them. George Henline led the Paperhangers with a 505 series.

Braun's Recreation upset the strong Mokena Oilers as they took two games and went into a tie for first place with them. The Smokers attack featured the bowling of Miller, Walsh and Werner.

Scanning over the team standings, the race is very tight with only two games separating the top and bottom teams. Looks like a good race to the finish.

God Called My Son!

God called my son His life, his soul have fled.

His body sleeps, and I know not his grave.

But this my hope shall be: "He is not dead!"

In his dear Lord he liveth evermore! I ask not "Why"? but trust God's way and will!

Though tears do flow, my soul, in Christ be still.

God called my son! In distant land he lies.

He was Thine own; received by Thee as Thine.

In life, in death, dear Lord, before our eyes Shine through Thy Cross that we mount to the skies.

I know Thy Love did hold him firm and fast:

Keep thou us true, that we may meet at last.

First In Tokyo

Tokyo, Japan
Sept. 15, 1945

Dear Sir:

I am sending you one of the News-papers that we get here. It tells about the First Cavalry entering Tokyo. This is the outfit which I am in. I was in the parade thru Tokyo and boy those bombs sure did wreck the place. There isn't much to look at here. I am going to take some pictures of the place. I thought maybe you would like to read this paper I am sending. Hope I hear from you.

Yours truly,

Pfc. Virgil L. Scott

First Cavalry Division

Editors note. That certainly was nice of you Virgil to send that "Message From P. K." It is most interesting. Following is one of the articles published in it:

The 1st Cavalry Division piled on ships at Batangas on the 25th of August and was underway for its last big job—to take over Tokyo. As we pulled into Yokohama on September 2nd Gen. MacArthur was signing the surrender papers on board the Battlewagon, "Missouri". Troops disembarked on the land of the rising sun, and the task was underway. After a short stay at a signal school the cavalrymen were ready to move into Tokyo.

Saturday, September 8 was the Big Day. The 1st Cavalry entered Tokyo first. It won a place in history that day which every division in the Pacific had desired. General Chase was the first to cross the city line. "PK" then raised his arm, waved it forward, and the Reconnaissance cars of the 302nd Recon troop plus a detachment of giant M7 tank destroyers moved into the Capital.

By 1000 hours the 7th Cavalry had placed men at the American Legation, Imperial hotel and Meiji Shrine park, where the Division later went into bivouac. At 1100 Gen. MacArthur, Admiral Halsey, Gen. Michelberger and other dignitaries were met by Gen. Chase at the Legation. The band played its greeting while the Generals moved up the steps behind the building to a natural platform in the garden.

To the rear of the stage stood the long line of standard and guidon bearers, while in front crouched more than 100 photographers, correspondents and news broadcasters. After Chaplain Walsh's fine benediction, Gen. MacArthur strode to the microphone and in thirty three words ordered the flag to be raised.

Next day division headquarters, the 5th cavalry and the balance of the 7th cavalry began moving into the Meiji Shrine park, from the Hara-Machida area. The 12th Cavalry had been guarding the Tachikawa airfield but were relieved and on September 10 started moving to the park. The 8th Cavalry stayed in Yokohama and is now at the Keio University.

While waiting to take up permanent quarters the division is occupied number of ways. Everything chasing war criminals to dig out garbage holes is included in the program. The 302nd has a mechanized patrol, the MP's work all over the city, the 7th Cavalry pulls guard duty at the Legation and around the bivouac area, and one platoon was even detached to fill up the Legation's swimming pool.

We've completed one mission by reaching Tokyo, but now we have another bigger one coming up—occupying it. Isn't that the way its always been?

RESOLUTION ENDORSING BUSBEY FOR CONGRESS BY COMMITTEEMEN OF 3RD CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

Whereas, the keystone of the structure of freedom for all Americans is the Congress of the United States, and

Whereas, in the last Congress the Third Congressional District of Illinois was outstandingly represented by the Lion, Fred E. Busbey, a man of sterling character, progressive ideas, proven ability and determined courage, who over a long period of years has consistently fought for the preservation of the right in the United States of the political, economic and social freedoms guaranteed everyone under our Constitution, and

Whereas, the said Fred E. Busbey while a member of Congress proved himself to be an outstanding champion of Veterans legislation, and particularly played a most important roll in shaping the "G. I. Bill of Rights" for the rehabilitation and adjustment of Veterans of World War II into civilian life; and

Whereas, the said Fred E. Busbey has given unsparingly of his time ever since World War I exposing subversive influences aimed at undermining our Republican form of government; and

Whereas, it is imperative that the America of Tomorrow must be guarded in Congress by men who believe in it such as Congressman Busbey.

Therefore, be it Resolved, that we, the duly elected Republican Committeemen of the Third Congressional District, do hereby urge and demand that Fred E. Busbey be a candidate for Congress in 1946, and as an expression of our pride in, and commendation of his outstanding record in the last Congress, again unanimously endorse him for this high office, and

Be it Further Resolved, that we request him to announce his willingness to be a candidate for Congress at an early date in order that other individuals and organizations may unite with us to assure his election.

Why people enjoy living in Chicago and Northern Illinois

Whether you live in a city apartment easily accessible to your business... a home with a yard for the children in any of the attractive suburban communities... a country place... or a home in one of Northern Illinois' progressive smaller cities or towns, the finest recreational and cultural advantages in the nation are available to you.

For Chicago and Northern Illinois is truly a leading educational center of the world. Northwestern University, the University of Chicago — these are only the two largest of scores of outstanding institutions providing almost unlimited facilities for learning. Open to everyone are the thousands of fine churches, great libraries, the Chicago Art Institute, the Museum of Natural History, and the Museum of Science and Industry. The Shedd Aquarium, Adler Planetarium and Brookfield Zoological Park... the opera, the theatre, symphony music are here for your enjoyment.

And stretching westward from the Lake Michigan shore with its sandy beaches and excellent yacht harbors, 41,000 acres of parks and forest preserves await your holiday with horseback riding, picnicking, fishing, swimming, sailing and golf—more than 200 courses within 40 miles of the city. The beautiful valleys of the Fox and Rock Rivers, the inviting waters of numerous inland lakes—all are within easy reach by fine auto highways.

Two major league baseball clubs, college and professional football, the colorful Golden Gloves boxing tournament, the famous Mackinac Yacht races, the International Livestock Show — these are some of the many important competitions centering here. There are winter sports — skating, skiing, tobogganing, hockey, ice boating, duck shooting. Then, too, this area is within a day's drive or a few hours by plane of the Wisconsin, Michigan and Canadian fishing and resort country.

The great diversification of opportunity in Chicago and Northern Illinois allows people to follow the kind of work they like... to live where and as they like... to play and relax as they like. This is why people enjoy living in Chicago and Northern Illinois.

Industries locating in this area have these outstanding advantages

Railroad Center of the United States • World Airport • Inland Waterways • Geographical Center of U. S. Population • Great Financial Center • The "Great Central Market" • Food Producing and Processing Center • Leader in Iron and Steel Manufacturing • Good Labor Relations Record • 2,500,000 Kilowatts of Power • Tremendous Coal Reserves • Abundant Gas and Oil • Good Government • Good Living

Mrs. Elmer Batson is general chairman of the second of a series of pinocle and bunco parties sponsored by the PTA of the Frankfort school to be held at the school auditorium this evening. These parties are given on the third Friday evening of each month. The public is welcome. Refreshments will be served and awards will be presented for high scores.

There will be no classes in rural or village schools today. Teachers of the North East division of the Illinois Educators Association will meet at Aurora. Miss Viola Lankenau, Mrs. H. Heuser and Miss Annette Kohlhaugen of the Frankfort school will attend, as will teachers in the rural areas.

The annual Frankfort school fair and Penny Social will be held in the gymnasium Wednesday October 31 at 7:30 pm. Pupils will come in Halloween costumes and will appear in a short program. Pets and hobbies will be displayed by the children. The PTA will have charge of the dining room and the Frankfort Woman's Club will have articles for sale at a booth of which Mrs. Raymond Hiroshige is chairman. Special feature at the booth will be the awarding of a woolen blanket.

Miss Viola Lankenau, principal, has announced that Frankfort School has subscribed 100 percent in the membership of the Junior Red Cross.

All pupils of the Frankfort school were photographed individually at school Monday.

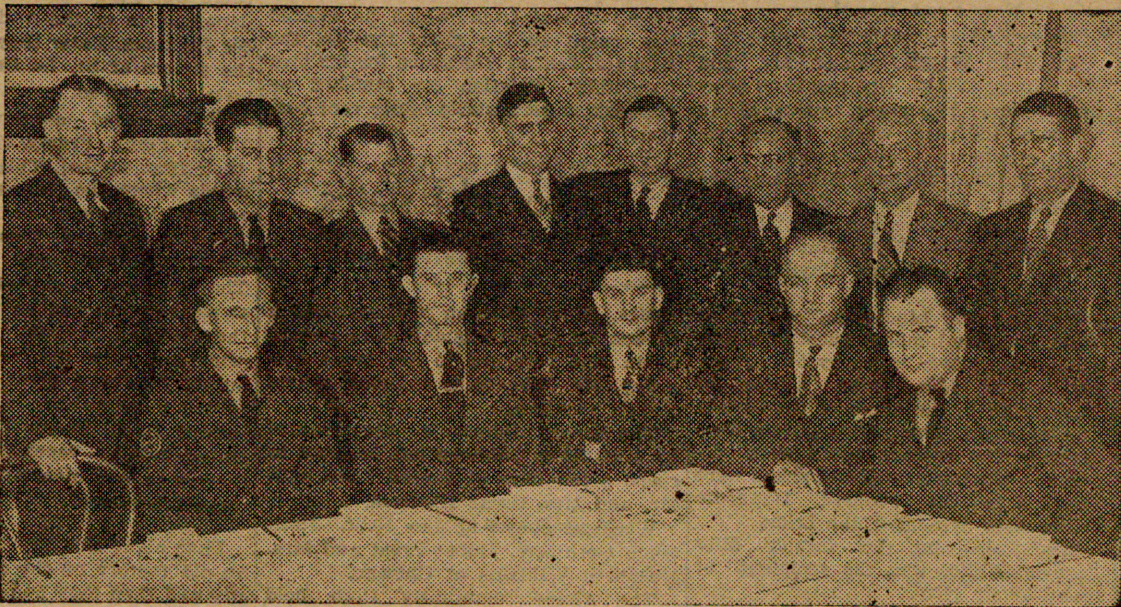

The school nurse of the Will County Health office recently examined the scalps of all students of school and fortunately found only one case of scalp ring worm which is so prevalent in the county and especially in Joliet schools. Examinations are made by a special lamp. This service may be had free of charge at the health office in Joliet Saturday mornings from 11 to 12 am. Early treatment is important.

Members of the Frankfort Volunteer Fire Department will meet at the Village hall Tuesday evening, October 23 for their regular monthly meeting.

Bernice Schmuhl, Frank Folkers, Juanita Waldvogel and Geo. Sangmeister composed the committee in charge of the social meeting of St. Peter's Youth Fellowship held at the church Thursday evening. Games were played and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Elmer Morrison presided at the meeting of the WSCS of the Green Garden Methodist church held at the home of Mrs. Earl Bettenhausen Wed-

Frankfort servicemen home on furloughs are: Cpl. Ralph Neiland, S-1c Clark Bennett, Pfc. Warren Bobzin, Pfc. Delbert Seemann and Sgt. Walter Cheney.

Mr. and Mrs. Herry Kuch celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Saturday evening in the Frankfort school gym where Schultz's orchestra of Downers Grove provided music for dancing. About 300 guests attended, from Highland Park, Waukegan, Chicago, South Chicago, Tinley Park, Monee, Peotone, Blue Island, Frankfort, Andros, Mokena, Oshkosh, Wis., and Waukau, Wis.

Mrs. Kuch was attired in a silver grey crepe dress and wore a corsage of pink carnations and lavender mums. Mrs. Lydia Miller of Highland Park, the bridesmaid, was present. The Kuchs received a prize from the group as well as numerous gifts and cards. On Sunday they entertained 16 guests at dinner in honor of the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Bennett entertained Sunday at dinner in honor of their son Clark, home on a 45 day leave from service in the US Navy. Guests were Mrs. Emma Geuther, Henry Geuther Jr., Mrs. Bertha Neiland, Cpl. and Mrs. Ralph Neiland, Mr. and Mrs. B. Schramm and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hartung and Pfc. Warren Bobzin.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Batson entertained their club members at Sunday supper followed by cards. Awards for scores at pinocle went to Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Harnack and Ed Dorband. The Harnacks are the next hosts.

Mrs. Elizabeth Harnack was hostess to a group of relatives at her home Sunday to celebrate her birthday. A pot luck supper was served. Guests were Mrs. Geo. Minger, Mrs. Augusta Weber, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Minger, Mrs. Matilda Harnack, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tobin, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Harnack and daughter Rita Ann, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Minger, Mr. and Mrs.

Herbert Kohlhaugen, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Steinhagen, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Harnack, Emil Lenhardt, Harold Lenhardt and Mrs. Leroy Mager will entertain their card club tomorrow evening, a week later than the original date.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Walker and children are leaving Frankfort to take up residence in Kansas. Mr. Walker was honorably discharged from the army recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harnack and sons left by trailer for Phoenix, Ariz. last week. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harnack will reside in their home on Kansas St.

ORLAND PARK

by Mrs. S. S. Knox

The Orland Park Boy Scout Troop 251 has enrolled 19 scouts in an American Red Cross Swimming Instruction course at the 111th St. YMCA starting Saturday, October 27 for 6 months. Upon completion of the course all scouts who qualify will receive an American Red Cross certificate for swimming or life saving, in addition to Scout Merit Badge credit.

Rev. and Mrs. A. Lach, Mrs. Gustie Hallinan, Mrs. Herman Nicolai and Mrs. R. Lillwitz attended the Concordia Teachers College Woman's Auxiliary Rally at River Forest, Thursday, October 11. Luncheon was served at 12:30 p.m. A program followed in which Rev. Walter A. Maier, Ph. D., of the Missouri Synod was guest speaker.

Miss Lois Rauch entertained some of her classmates at her home Saturday afternoon in honor of her sixteenth birthday anniversary. Refreshments, were served and everyone reported having had a good time. Lois was the recipient of many lovely gifts.

Elmer Newton, town clerk of Orland Township is a medical patient in Silver Cross hospital, Joliet where he was taken last Thursday night.

Marvin Schmaedeke and family have moved into the flat formerly occupied by Joe Rust family.

Cpl. Wm. Heiting who has been stationed at Marshall Base, Riverside, Cal. is home and enjoying a 30 day furlough. He reports back to camp the 25th and expects to receive his discharge shortly.

Sgt. Eddie Polaski of Lemont who was inducted into service the same day with Cpl. Heiting over 4 years ago, has received his honorable discharge. Bill and Eddie became buddies while in basic training. Their companionship was severed when Eddie went overseas where he saw action in Germany. Now Sgt. Eddie is home and spent Monday in Orland Park visiting the Heiting family.

A Post miscellaneous Bridal shower was given by Miss Mary Jane McAleer for Mrs. Carolyn McAleer last Wednesday evening, Oct. 10 at the St. Michaels church parlors. Games of bingo were enjoyed by all and delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. Carolyn received many beautiful gifts.

Sgt. Wm. McAleer who recently married Carolyn Brennan while home on furlough, has received his honorable discharge and is back home in Orland Park.

Don't forget the Food and Bake sale the PTA will sponsor Saturday, October 20 at Creers store from 2 to 4 p.m. Any donations will be greatly appreciated.

The first meeting of the Orland Park Woman's Club held Wednesday afternoon October 10 at the home of the president, Mrs. Paul T. Saunders on the Southwest Highway, was largely attended by members and several guests. Mrs. Knox presented a request from the American Red Cross, Camp and Hospital Committee, for donations for Christmas gifts for boys in hospitals overseas, a list of articles 6 of which could be selected for one gift package. Mrs. Sanders, president asked the pleasure of the club and after a little discussion as the time to send packages was very short, it was decided to take a collection at the close of the meeting and allow the chairman to select and purchase gifts.

Mrs. Sanders, Mrs. Adele Cooper, music chairman and Mrs. Knox, press chairman, reported on attending the Work and Fun conference and round tables of the 3rd district held at the Ridge Park Field House.

Miss Mildred Bradshaw, Asst. Educational director Radio station WBBM CBS was introduced and spoke of her work in the radio station, how scripts were presented and how a sponsor had to be located to become interested in script to sponsor same, and that if it were not for the commercial end of serials on the radio, which pay dearly for same, there would be no programs. Miss Bradshaw extended an invitation to visit the studio and see how the programs are presented over the air.

Miss Lylas Kay, Dietician at United Air Lines was next introduced by Mrs. Sanders, and her subject was Food Service Aloft. Miss Kay told how meals were planned and prepared in their kitchens and how they were packed and ready for distribution at the various airports and on time. Miss Kay showed pictures of their immaculate kitchens where the coffee was brewed and the meals prepared and packed, which are placed in paper containers, drinking cup was plastic, and packed in air tight boxes, also exhibited a tray with the prepared food. Miss Kay also invited the members as a group or individually to visit the plant and she would be glad to escort them around the various rooms.

Mrs. John Loebe and Mrs. Len Kay poured the tea and coffee and dainty sandwiches were served by the hostesses Mesdames Paul Sanders, Sigmund Smith, Franklin Loebe and Ernest Wood. The silver offering was turned over to Mrs. Stewart Loebe library chairman.

The collection taken after the meeting for the Christmas gifts netted enough for 6 packages, which have been packed and on their way to the Red Cross. Mrs. Karl Ekberg assisted Mrs. Knox.

Dr. Caldwell of Lemont, Ill. has purchased the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wink. The latter will move to Lockport in the near future.

Rent Control

(Too many folks are under the impression that the bars are down on both rent and price controls. Here is a story that shows that both controls continue important to your community's fight against inflation.)

Along with price control on cost-of-living and reconversion items, rent control continues to rank high in Southern Cook County's fight against post-victory inflation, it was pointed out today by John Joseph Ryan, Director of the Chicago Defense Rental Area.

"It is important to point out that a minimum lapse of six months, rather than three, is now required before the purchaser of a home may evict a tenant in order to occupy the house himself," said John J. VanDerAa, Manager of the Harvey Branch Office.

Evictions have been taking place at an alarming rate in Southern Cook County and other nearby communities, he added, and the need of the longer period arises from the added protection it gives tenants who are often forced from their homes because they cannot find other living quarters within their price range.

"Just as we must continue to hold the price line on cost-of-living items to avert inflation, so we must also keep up rent controls for a time," said John J. VanDerAa, Branch Office Manager, pointing out that 90 per cent of rent inflation in the World War 1 period came after the armistice was signed.

Because of current high prices for real estate, over which OPA has no authority, an unprecedented number of rental properties has been sold around here, and the eviction problem has grown.

Mr. Van Der Aa added that the new six-month minimum eviction period provides special protection for service men. The waiting period may be waived if the buyer of the house has been in the armed services and wants to occupy the house so that he and his family may be united again.

As an indication that courts are backing up enforcement of rent controls, Mr. John Loebe was re-elected Vice President, Mrs. Howard Cooper, Secretary and Mr. Frank Sayers, treasurer. As Mrs. T. hos. Cooper, president declined the nomination for re-election of president and no accepted nominations from the floor, the election of a president was held over until the November meeting. After the business session, refreshments were served by Mrs. Kathryn Brandau and Mr. and Mrs. James Creer.

trols, he cited the precedent setting fine assessed recently in Chicago municipal court when a landlord was held in contempt for renting to a third party an apartment from which he evicted the tenant on the claim that he, the landlord, desired the space for his own occupancy. Eviction for landlord occupancy is permissible under rent control.

Arrian Yunker of Orland Recounts Many Experiences

Thru the past several years friends of Arrian Yunker, son of Supervisor Supervisor and Mrs. Fred Yunker of Orland Park, have always been glad to hear from him and it was a genuine pleasure for me to sit down and have a visit with him a week or so ago.

Cpl. Arrian Yunker, now 23 years old, entered the service April 25, 1941 and trained in this country 2 1/2 years with the 28th Infantry Division as a motor gunner at various camps: Camp Croft, S. Car., Indiantown Gap, Pa. Camp Livingstone, La. Camp Gordon Johnson, Fla. and Camp Pickett, Va.

As we follow him in preparing for service in this World war 2, we find he sailed Oct. 7, 1943 on the U. S. Gibson and landed at Bristol, England, Oct. 18. They were taken to South Wales, England Oct. 18. They were taken to South Wales, England where they received a royal welcome with dances and nice refreshments. Arrian and his group stayed there for 5 months for advance training. It was in March 1944 they went by truck to Camp Salisbury, England to prepare for the Normandy invasion and on July 21 they sailed on a small British troop craft for Normandy. They were one day in crossing the channel.

Landing at Omaha Beach they spent ten days there re-organizing for combat and during this time they viewed the bombing of St. Lo, France where a terrible battle was taking place. Viewing this bombing, greatly encouraged the newly landed troops, knowing there was good assistance from other departments of the nation's battle forces for them. Later they marched thru the streets of St. Lo finding it completely destroyed.

They pressed continually forward and at Percy, France they engaged in their first combat. This was in a large woods where the Germans had a large ammunition supply, and needless to say this was captured. This was the largest ammunition dump in Normandy. They engaged in skirmishes at all times as they marched on to Paris which they reached August 29, Wednesday afternoon, after the Nazis were driven out of France. A great celebration was taking place as Arrian and his group entered Paris. People lined the streets giving bread, vegetables, fruit and flowers to our men, and yelling "Welcome Liberators".

That night this 28th division slept in an old factory on the outskirts of the city and then they had a good hot supper as the U. S. kitchen was not far behind and soon got into action cooking a good meal for the boys, which was much appreciated as their regular food for months was rations. The next day they left and marched on foot, for Luxembourg and Belgium. At Luxembourg they caught up with the enemy and watched them retreat to Germany. They resembled droves of ants, there were so many of them, leaving to return to their own country to protect it from the forward pressing U. S. army.

Just one day they stayed at Luxembourg for rest, and then on to fight their way into Germany and it was Sept. 13, 1944 when they came up to the Siegfried line at the place where Belgium, Luxembourg and Germany meet.

The fighting was fierce and for two weeks they fought to get thru the Line neither side gaining, as both sides were equal in strength and the Nazis knew if their Line gave way, it was the beginning of their doom, so therefore they fought fiercely, but no more so than did the Allies.

It was during this battle, Sept. 27 at 5 o'clock in the evening as Arrian was cleaning his gun, preparing for the next days fighting, that he was hit by an 88 shrapnel shell which landed within about 25 feet from where he was sitting. He was the first one wounded in his group. The shrapnel hit him in his right leg from the back. He ran into the basement of a nearby barn and applied first aid to himself with the help of a medic. Then he was taken to a medical Aid station and who should he meet but his hometown neighbor, Chuck Lorenz. Meeting him was better than any medicine, his morale was raised, and with the addition of two hot cups of cocoa which Chuck secured for him, he was ready for most anything. By this time he had received sulfa, penicillin and tetanus, lock jaw preventive. By ambulance he was now taken to a tent hospital where nurses were on duty and where just five hours after being hit, he was operated for the removal of the shrapnel. Soon he was sent by ambulance thru various hospital stations until he reached Liege, Belgium where he stayed four days and then flew to Salisbury, England to a station hospital and this was near where he had trained many months previous. Next move was to the 137th general hospital at Liverpool England where he stayed for five months convalescing. Arriving at this hospital he wrote a letter to his childhood friend and nearby neighbor, Staff Sgt. Wilbur Mancke, of Mokena who was Chaplain assistant, and he and Chaplain Richards drove 175 miles one way to the hospital to visit with Arrian. That was like having a visit from his own brother, Arrian said.

However, during previous stays in England, Arrian and Wilbur had quite a number of visits and at one time Wilbur was successful in securing a ride on a B17 for Arrian, which the latter enjoyed for two hours, flying over England, and France and viewing the destruction in these countries.

By February 1945, Arrian was recovered and left to enter service again at Compeigne, France, where he was inducted into the Air Corps and worked as a clerk in the office.

At Compeigne, it will be remembered was the place where the World War I Armistice was signed in a railroad car. Arrian visited this spot, but the Nazis had removed that car and all evidence of that Armistice signing was destroyed, except the monument erected to the memory of Marshall Foch, and because Germany respects militarism, they did not destroy this. Here Arrian also went to Reims, France, 50 miles distant and went into the brick school house where the Armistice of this war was signed May 10th between Gen. Eisenhower and the German Commanders. This school is a 3 or 4 story building and Arrian strolled thru this with a guard watching him, but did not get into the room where the actual signing was done. That was roped and locked.

In Paris, Arrian also visited noted cathedrals, Napoleon's tomb, Eiffel Tower, Arch of Triumph. At Compeigne he saw the Joan of Arc tower, Napoleon's Museum and the court yard. Here also the French people were celebrating, for two days VE day with fireworks, US flags, bands, dancing and general rejoicing. Then when VJ day came, the celebration was repeated, but this time it was carried on for 3 days.

While Arrian and his division were at South Wales, Gen. Eisenhower viewed the First Army, which included this division. "A man you could put your confidence in as a military leader" was the way Arrian expressed his respect for this great General.

Then finally another great day came when Cpl. Yunker left on August 27th for Paris to be processed for the voyage home, sailing Sept. 9 from Antwerp, Belgium on the USS Fayetteville, with two thousand other service men. They landed Sept. 19 at Norfolk, Va. where bands, coffee, donuts and happy people greeted them. Then to Camp Patrick Henry where pie, ice cream and turkey dinner were served them. And all this time, home was coming closer and when he arrived at Ft. Sheridan, of course, he called his parents, and which was the most joyful, is hard to say.

Processing so many, at the rate of 110 per hour, day and night, took many days before they came to Cpl. Yunker's name and when they did it was one o'clock in the morning, but that didn't matter, it was worth staying up for. During this time of waiting, Arrian did come home, "over the fence" as the expression is, and who could blame him, so near and yet so far from home, even the army didn't blame the boys, as they accommodately placed leaders to make "going over the fence" easier.

Cpl. Yunker had 96 points, wears the ETO ribbon with 3 bronze stars, Purple Heart, Good Conduct Ribbon, Pre-Pearl Harbor Defense Ribbon, 3 overseas bars, 1 service stripe, Combat Inf. Badge, 9th Air Force and 28th Division Patch, Presidential Citation of the 28th Division.

He's a Mister now and is enjoying a well earned vacation.

GI's Want To Get Home

Manila, P. I.

Eddie Nugent, Tinley Park, arrived in the Philippine Capitol September 21, direct from Marseilles, France.

The troop ship was on the high seas 43 days, averaging well in excess of 15,000 miles during that time.

The ship left Marseilles, France, the evening of July 30, arrived at Christopol, Panama August 11 for twenty hour lay over before moving thru the locks.

From Panama the next stop was a three day lay over at Hollandia, New Guinea, twenty one days from Panama.

The lone troop ship hitting 18 knots per hour pulled into Manila Harbor on Sept. 9. The ship anchored in the harbor three days among hundreds of other ships of all types, before landing troops by invasion barges to shore on Sept. 12.

The troop ship passed the Rock of Gibraltar, Porto Rica, Panama Canal Zone, Gilberts, Christmas, Admiralty Islands, New Guinea, Mindanao, Rock of Corregidor and Bataan.

Nugent spent 15 months in Europe. Two months were in England and 13 months in France, Belgium and Germany. Nugent landed at Utah Beach soon after D-Day. He is the holder of five battle stars for Normandy and Central France, Ardennes, Rhineland and Central Europe, operating VHF Radio for the 1, 3, 9 Armies and 12th Army group.

The 980th Signal Service Co., Nugent's outfit, were split up in small groups for the various Armies in Europe. The outfit is holder of the Meritorious Citation for brilliant work during the St. Lo break through, Ardennes and Germany.

Nugent viewed the decayed bodies of tortured and machine gunned Belgium patriots in March.

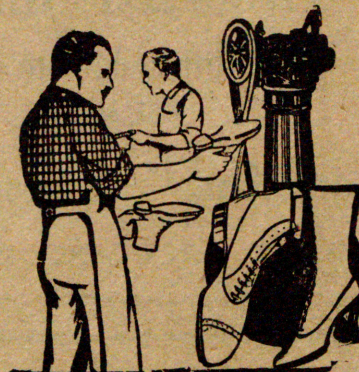

From one end of the World to the other, Eddie, a high pointer, hopes to be home, Army permitting, within six months. The tension among GI's overseas is high in wanting to get home as quickly as possible.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 14, was:

"ARE SIN, DISEASE AND DEATH REAL?"
The Golden Text was:

"Look upon Zion, the city of our solemnities: . . . The inhabitant shall not say, I am sick: the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity" (Isa. 33: 20, 24).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits, even the God of our salvation. He that is our God is the God of salvation; and unto God the Lord belong the issues from death. . . . We, then, as workers together with him, beseech you also that ye receive not the grace of God in vain. (For he saith, I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation have I succoured thee: behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation.) (Ps. 68: 1, 20; II Cor. 6: 1, 2).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"The relinquishment of all faith in death and also of the fear of its sting would raise the standard of health and morals far beyond its present elevation, and would enable us to hold the banner of Christianity aloft with unflinching faith in God, in Life eternal. . . . The great spiritual fact must be brought out that man is, not shall be, perfect and immortal. We must hold forever the consciousness of existence, and sooner or later, through Christ and Christian Science we must master sin and death. The evidence of man's immortality will become more apparent, as material beliefs are given up and the immortal facts of being are admitted" (pp. 426, 428).

Mrs. Esther Mae Vanderbilt and Mrs. Minnie Blodgett were hostesses to the Women's club in the home of the former on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Carrie Bush led the group in the pledge to the flag. Reports were given by the chairmen of the various committees. Mrs. Sarah Gorham presented the program which opened by group singing "Battle Hymn of the Republic" accompanied by Mrs. Iva Sproat. Mrs. Bush gave an interesting talk on Our Vice presidents. Mrs. Cele Riley gave an article Not so Different. The Little People of Germany was read by Mrs. Virginia Sass. Music, Everywhere was presented by Mrs. Carrie Gorham. The program concluded with a quiz. How Much do you Know About Men? Following the roll call a guessing game was held and the prize was awarded to Mrs. Sass. Mrs. Lila Sievert gave the recipe of the month. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Mrs. Maggie Day returned to her home Friday from Hot Springs, Ark., where she had been receiving medical treatment. She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Peterson of Los Angeles, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sproat spent Sunday afternoon with relatives in Worth.

Mrs. Owen Storm and Mrs. Belle Storm entertained several guests at a Stanley brush demonstration in their home Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Gorham entertained several friends in their home Saturday evening. Pinochle was played during the evening. At a late hour refreshments were served. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Anderson and daughter Betty, Mr. and Mrs. John Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Royal Corp and son Roger and Mr. and Mrs. Loren Sass and daughter Cheryl.

Miss DeLoris Cleveland was hostess to the Patriotic Workers in her home Friday evening. The business meeting was held while the group was doing handicraft work. The bi-annual election of officers was held with the following results: Pres. Mary Gorham Vice Pres. DeLoris Cleveland, Treas. Betty Haas and Secretary, Lois Bell. After the meeting games and refreshments were enjoyed.

The Missionary Society met Thursday in the Marley church. Dinner was served at noon by the committee. Mrs. Chas. Laufer, Mrs. Chas. Lahmann, Mrs. Russel Laufer and Mrs. Harwood Stellwagen. Rev. Saunders, who talked on The Family and the Community, was program leader.

Pfc. Orval Cleveland, who recently returned from overseas, arrived at the Clayton Cleveland home Saturday to spend a few days. He left Wednesday for his home in Warren, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith were pleasantly surprised in their home Thursday evening by a group of friends who gathered for an old fashioned pound party. The evening was spent playing games after which Mr. and Mrs. Smith opened their gifts which were brought. Later refreshments were served.

The pupils of School Dist. 149 and 153 taught by Mrs. Carrie Johns and Mrs. J. C. Knight composed the following poem to advertise their Halloween Social:

Listen my friends and you shall hear,
Of a Halloween hardtime party drawing near.

On October 26th 'tis Friday night,
Come to Green Garden Town hall and see a strange sight.

Bring all the family and wear a big smile,

And we'll all be kids again just for awhile.

There will be games for Mother and cards for Dad

And things for the youngsters to make their hearts glad.

Prizes for costumes both large and small,

Ghosts and goblins each and all,

So come in an outfit and humor that's right,

And be at the Townhall at 8 Friday night.

First Marine Lt. Jack Clark, wounded four times in major campaigns and holder of that many Purple Hearts, is on sick leave from Klamuth Falls, Ore. Hospital, Lt. Clark, a grandson of the John M. Clark, a veteran of the Iwo Jima and Okinawa campaigns, is wearing a walking cast for a serious leg wound received in combat. He also served on Guam and in China. Recently Lt. Clark and his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Floyd Clark of Danville visited his uncle Dr. Paul Clark and his grandmother both of whom reside in Marlesville, Mrs. Clark recently sold her home in Frankfort.

The following letter was received recently by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Vollrath from their son Lambert, stationed in Japan: Dear Folks: I received two letters from you yesterday for which I was very glad. I am now in Japan, in the city of Nagasaki where the atomic bomb was dropped. It is almost unbelievable to see the damage that thing really did. We came here three days ago, and my what a place. It smells worse than the stockyards, and the people live worse than a bunch of cattle. There wasn't any water fit to wash in, or drink, and they have no lavatories. They sleep on the floor and eat on the same spot they slept on. Barracks were built for us when we go here but we haven't moved into them as they were unsanitary and we are showing them how to kill disease germs before we move in.

The men salute all of us fellows every time we pass by, and the women bow down to us as if we were a God, or something almighty. It seems kind of strange to us. I was in charge of a working party this morning. I had 11 Jap men and 17 Jap women who really put out a lot of work, only I have a hard time trying to make them understand me. A couple of Jap kids are trying to teach us how to pronounce their words, that is the only difficulty I have.

These people have a lot of odd customs, like taking off their shoes before entering a house. A woman hasn't the right to think, they're supposed to do what the men tell them. The women do all of the work and they have private factories in their own homes.

We are eating C rations that aren't even warm, so they are not so good. From where I am sitting I can see 23 Jap ships that are anchored. They are troop ships but the guns have been taken off. The building I am living in now used to be sort of a hotel for shipyard workers. There are four of us to a room and the building has 600 Marines living in it. It gets pretty cold up here every night and it has rained every night since we have been here.

The people are about 100 years behind the times, to see them from day today is just like a movie. The children are very polite and obey their parents immediately. I believe I am now as far away from my loved ones as I can get. You know when I got into the service I said in a joking manner I was going to Japan, and here I am although it took me two and a half years to get here. We never realize how lucky we were until we see these people.

In your letter you mentioned you visited the LST. I rode one of them for 25 days. They are a small ship, sometimes we thought the waves of the ocean would sink it but it stayed afloat. I rode on an LST from Pearl Harbor to the Marshall Is. for the invasion. I can tell you now, I was in the campaign of Marshall Is., Marianas and Okinawa. I still think that I will either be on my way, or be home for Christmas, that is if they bring in relief. All my love, Lambert."

Young Vollrath has never been home since entering the service with the Marines.

War Prisoners

Italian prisoners of war who have been serving as volunteer workers at the Vaughan General Army hospital at Hines, a suburb of Chicago, soon will be returning to Italy. Someone will have to take their places.

Today the U. S. Civil Service Commission is issuing a call for laborers, janitors, laundry workers, dry cleaners and pressers, linen inspectors and a number of other types of workers.

"With so many people reported as idle it would seem that some of them would be willing to take over these chores," said Joseph A. Connor, regional director for the Commission. "With overtime these jobs will pay over $2,000 a year. But that is not the main consideration. There is a word to say for the patients who need this care. They are the men who fought our battles, they fought until they fell.

"Advanced skill in medicine and careful nursing have brought many of these men home who might never have survived in other wars. Now it is for us who work with our hands to do our part. We must take care of the grounds, keep the corridors clean, provide plenty of clean bed linen, see that they are fed."

Application for these positions may be made at the regional office of the U. S. Civil Service Commission, 433 W. VanBuren St., Chicago, at the Oak Park USES office or forms may be obtained at any first or second class post office in Illinois or Wisconsin.

Will the Bretton Woods Agreements Work?

As debated by

Dr. Broadus Mitchell
Research Director, International
Ladies Garment Workers Union

Henry Hazlitt
Member, Editorial Board,
"The New York Times"

DR. MITCHELL OPENS: There is no use to ask whether political stumbling blocks or economic pitfalls are referred to in this question. The fact is—in foreign exchange and investment, with which the Bretton Woods plan is concerned, economic and political elements are merged. Time was when we thought of foreign exchange as governed by economic forces. It was taken as a perfect example of the result of self-interest and competitive practice. It was supposed to be apart from political management or planning. All has changed. The whole of foreign trade during the war was taken under governmental supervision. Before, it had become subject to political control, completely in some countries, partially in others. The means of international payment were supplied not by merchants, travellers, insurers, etc., but by great government funds. So when we ask whether the Bretton Woods scheme will work, let's be clear we are talking about our own purpose and sincerity, not about mysterious automatic forces of trade and exchange. Economics has long contended for recognition as a science. This was a mistake. Instead, it is an art; therefore, moral and political factors are of supreme importance in the success of any economic planning. There is no such thing, really, as economic mechanism apart from social intent.

MR. HAZLITT CHALLENGES: Dr. Mitchell's wide-ranging generalities seem to me a little beside the point. We are not discussing whether economics is a science or an art or a matter of taste, but whether the Bretton Woods agreements will work as their advocates assume. I can only repeat that outside loans, support buying of sick currencies by other nations (the remedies that the Fund proposes), are at best stop-gap measures. They will prove worse than useless, they will only prolong unsound policies, unless they are made conditional on internal reforms in the nations whose currencies have to be supported. But the loans are to be practically automatic. The Fund managers are not granted reasonable discretion in making them.

DR. MITCHELL REPLIES: War destruction was widespread. I make no apologies, therefore, for insisting we get away from the old treadmill of supposed economic laws—which step Mr. Hazlitt seems so fond—and which Mr. Hazlitt boldly toward new objectives. He begs the question when he says the countries Bretton Woods intends to help are in such an abominable plight they probably cannot recover and will pull down the stronger countries. I do not believe this. Even if the richer countries don't help the poorer the richer will soon be destroyed by their own surpluses and garbage piles in far corners of the world may be useful receivers of economic refuse.

MR. HAZLITT OPENS: The Bretton Woods Agreements cannot work for the simple reason that they attempt to remove symptoms without dealing with causes. In the long run no nation's currency can be sound or stable unless that nation's own policies keep it so. The best way to do that is to make the currency unit convertible into a fixed quantity of gold. To maintain such convertibility, a nation must prevent excessive expansion of its currency or bank credit. It must balance its budget, or at least make sure that its budget is not too long out of balance. It must refrain from policies that undermine confidence in its currency at home or abroad. The Bretton Woods Fund agreement ignores all this and seeks to solve the problem of keeping currencies stable by forcing the use of the strong currencies to buy the weaker at their fixed parity. This would force the nations with strong currencies to subsidize the internal economic policies, whatever they happened to be, of the nations with weak currencies, which would only encourage the latter to continue the bad policies that made their currencies weak. In the end the strong currencies would either have to abandon their support or the weak currencies would destroy the strong.

DR. MITCHELL CHALLENGES: Why worry about technical problems? I believe the plan protects against these dangers. The scheme of enabling devastated, undeveloped countries to trade and build their economies must be carried through, or losses worse than those Mr. Hazlitt has in mind will result. Countries with little to export, but desperately needing imports, must be aided. Those never able to take more than a subordinate part in the world's economic-political life must be assisted to maturity for the good of all. This grand object of one world cannot be realized if we halt over every technical vexation. We have to substitute another standard of national-international excellence instead of convertibility of a currency into gold. This has become irrelevant.

MR. HAZLITT REPLIES: Dr. Mitchell begs the whole question in dismissing the objections to the Bretton Woods agreements as "technical". The whole question is whether these agreements will in fact bring the blessings that their advocates promise, or whether they will do far more harm than good. As Prof. E. W. Kemmerer has summed up the answer: "Realistically speaking, the trend of the Bretton Woods Monetary Plan would be away from currency stability, free exchange and internationalism, and toward currency devaluation, exchange controls, paper-money standards and monetary nationalism." This won't bring "the grand object of one world" of which Dr. Mitchell dreams.

Wallace's Job Program Packs Political TNT

Reorganization of Commerce Department First Step Forward in Formulation of Full Employment Policy.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

The recent operating and organization program for the department of commerce created very little excitement in Washington or elsewhere when it was released. I think it made page 15 of the New York Times. The Times gave much more prominence recently to another document from the pen of Henry Agard Wallace—his new book, "Sixty Million Jobs," of which I shall speak later.

Congress may slumber on the reorganization report for yet a little, but when Washington wakes to the real significance of this 10-page, mimeographed document it will find between the lines much upon which to ponder. (Maybe that is why it was double-spaced.)

To me, this is a three-in-one instrument—just as its author, Henry Wallace, revealed himself as a three-in-one personality when I called on him just before the publication of his program, his first approach to the governmental limelight since the change in administration.

The report on what Mr. Wallace in his capacity as secretary of commerce hopes will mean the revitalizing and expanding of his department, envisions the metamorphosis of that somewhat turgid and impotent institution into a vigorous and human organization which will reach out and touch millions of individuals just as the government's most virile department, agriculture, does. Secretary Wallace said frankly at his press conference and also in more detail privately to me, that he thought that the department of commerce should do for the business man, big and little, what the department of agriculture does for the farmer, big and little. And it will, if he has his way.

Active Department Secretary's Goal

Wipe out of your mind, if you will, that one-time problem child of the New Deal, the agricultural adjustment administration. Now weigh the testimony of observers, including anti-Wallaceites, and I think you will learn that as secretary of agriculture, the author of "Sixty Million Jobs" did a good job in revitalizing his department.

How much it will cost to do as much for commerce, we couldn't get him to estimate, but he finally told us that it would be less than one-sixth of the cost of one day's war at V-E Day. By a series of calculations we arrived at the figure of 40 million dollars. Since the commerce department spent about 121 million dollars last year, Mr. Wallace's changes would make a total cost for his revitalized department of 161 million dollars.

Those who cry economy will shudder at that figure but they will hear this answer: If business, big and little, wants help similar to that which agriculture demands and gets it will cost something. The department of agriculture cost approximately 769 million dollars to run last year, and the farmers wouldn't want it to do less.

There will also be another explanation of the figures which will attempt to show that part of the expansion of the reorganized department is really contraction, and that brings us to the second integer of the three-in-one composition of Mr. Wallace's plan. The plan is more than a blueprint for changes in a single governmental institution. It is definitely a part of President Truman's reorganization plan which it is fair to assume would bring back under the commerce roof the horde of agencies and commissions which have to do with industry and business.

And now we come to part three of the tri-partite function of the Wallace program. It is by his own implication, a part of his recipe for full employment included in his book, "Sixty Million Jobs," and mention of that brings me to an examination of Mr. Wallace himself.

I said that like the program of reorganization for his department, Mr. Wallace seemed tripartite to me. When I called upon him, he came down the great, cavernous room which Herbert Hoover planned for his successor and we sat in chairs about a little table that made a hospitable oasis in the midst of the desert vastness of high walls and lofty ceiling.

A Presidential Ghost Emerges

I had really come to see Henry Wallace, the author of "Sixty Million Jobs," which had just been reported a best seller in two New York stores. We discoursed at some length on that opus and gradually I found myself also talking to Henry Wallace, secretary of commerce, for, as I suggested earlier, many a strand from "Sixty Million Jobs" may be discovered in the warp and woof of the department reorganization plan.

As the conversation moved from book to report and back to book again, never getting far from the theme of full employment, I thought I could make out an ectoplasmic form arising from what had been up until then my two-part, author-secretary host. The third being, although not yet completely materialized, little by little became translucently visible to the naked eye. This party of the third part I thought I recognized as Henry Wallace, presidential candidate (1948 or at least 1952).

Perhaps I would not have believed my eyes if it had not been for a statement which a stout supporter of Mr. Wallace had made to me: "Sixty Million Jobs" comes pretty near to being just about the best political platform the Democratic party can run on in the next election."

In one place, Author Wallace says: "There are a few, of course, who think that any government servant who uses the phrase 'full employment' is engaged in some deep dark plot. But they are the exceptions that prove the people's sanity and soundness as a whole."

Senator McClellan might be considered one of the exceptions from his remarks in the debate on the full employment bill. He said that the measure "says a great deal and actually means nothing except to create an erroneous impression in the minds of the people." He later described it as "soft soap."

'Sixty Million Jobs' Draws Commendations

Whatever the lawmakers think, the reviewers certainly are full of praise for Wallace's book. The New York Times calls it "a thoughtful and thought-provoking discussion of American political economy," and the Saturday Review of Literature, agreeing with the Times, adds that, "more than any recent work on economics or politics, it can serve as a moral testament and intellectual guide in the eventful, difficult days ahead."

The work appeared first in a business-letter-sheet size with paper cover; it followed in orthodox book form. Later the author hopes, he told me, that it will be printed in a cheap, pocket-size edition.

When Mr. Wallace said that I thought I caught his ectoplasmic triplet nodding emphatic approval while ghostly lips formed the words, "for every voter's pocket."

Much water will pass beneath the Potomac bridges between now and 1948 or 1952. We have with us at present a conservative congress and the political veterans say that no matter which way the wind may blow abroad, it is blowing to the right on Capitol hill and, they add hopefully, perhaps not too leftward at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue.

Secretary - author - candidate Wallace's full employment program requires much more legislation than the full employment bill. That is only the first step. The expansion and re-orientation of his and other departments will be required. Then there will be special taxation; there will be at least the blue-printing of public works; there will have to be a settled policy providing for foreign loans—the Bretton Woods program and other stimulants of world trade and tourist traffic.

If a too conservative congress did not grant the minimum legislative implementation, the "Sixty Million Jobs" plan could not be carried out. That, however, Mr. Wallace's supporters insist, will simply make 60 million people who want jobs, plus their families, vote for the man who believes they can be produced.

BARBS... by Baukhage

Two hundred thousand of Berlin's three million population are members of trade unions. But what have they got to trade?

If anybody asks you: "Don't you know there's a war on?" the answer is "yes" and whether you like it or not it will be for six months after a formal declaration of peace which isn't even in sight yet.

The White House had its first real paint job since the war began and looks like a new place. The scaffolds were up before J-surrender day. I wonder if the painters had a tip?

We have 20 million less horses and mules to feed than we once had in this country. But the land used to raise food for them is now feeding human beings.

Ever Try Making Cough Syrup In Your Kitchen?

Quick Relief. No Cooking. Easy!

If you've never tried mixing your own cough medicine, you've missed a lot. It's no trouble—needs no cooking—and gives you about four times as much cough syrup for your money. You'll say it beats anything you ever tried for coughs due to colds. And here's how it's done:—

Make a plain syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until it is dissolved. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugarsyrup. Get 2½ ounces of Finex from your druggist. Put this into a pint bottle and fill up with your syrup. This makes a pint—a family supply. Tastes fine and never spoils. Children love it. And as for results, you've never seen anything better. It goes right to work on the cough, loosening the phlegm, soothing the irritation, and helping clear the air passages. You will like it for its results, and not merely for the money it saves.

Finex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.—Adv.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. (Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.)

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Fattening Lambs

One help in putting weight on lambs is to keep sheep and lambs free from parasites, especially nodular worms and stomach worms. Infestation with parasites holds back growth and increases feed costs. Serious losses from parasites can be prevented by providing clean pasture, by the use of phenothiazine, and by taking other precautions.

Bike Passenger

You invite disaster when you carry another person on your bike.

Egg Eating

Egg eating by chickens is a habit usually developed by young pullets. This costly habit can be prevented by providing plenty of nests—one nest for each six birds—so eggs will not be broken by nest crowding at laying time. All nest bottoms can be kept well padded with litter such as hay, straw, cottonseed, shavings, so eggs will not be broken as they are laid. If the egg-eating habit has gone so far that some of the birds break the eggs themselves, it may be necessary to remove those birds from the flock for a few days or dispose of them entirely.

Heating Safety

One of the most notable innovations in safe heating is the wet base boiler in which water circulates under the ash pit. The fact that the boiler can be placed on a combustible floor is of interest in connection with the trend toward the basement-less house. In such houses it is often desirable to install the boiler on a wooden floor in a utility room or kitchen. Other safety features of modern boilers are foot-treadle door openers, ball-shaped, air-cooled handles and side shakers, making it easier to open and close doors.

Whip Soap Flakes

Whip your soap flakes in a little hot water with an egg beater and you will need fewer flakes and get better results.

Apple Picker

Watch the experienced apple picker at work and you will see that he sets his ladder properly and keeps balanced on it so he works as freely as he does on the ground.

Picker's Clothes

One of the first things the apple picker should do is to see that he has clothes for the job that protect the skin and help prevent accidents. They should be fitted for bending, be snug at the neck, ankles and wrists, and have usable pockets.

Bath Banishes Blues

According to etymologists, the English word "bath" comes indirectly from a Greek word meaning "to drive sadness from the mind." Which goes to prove again that the classic Greeks were a modern people and that they knew the full value of bodily cleansing. Bathe frequently and thoroughly, and thus "drive sadness from the mind."

Keeps Mouth Shut

The reason a dog has so many friends is that his tail wags instead of his tongue.

Canned Carp

A Minnesota manufacturer is about to can carp and market it, graded, tuna-style, under the name of "Lakefish."

There's a Firestone TIRE Built for Every Wheel that Rolls on the Farm

FOR your tractor... for your truck... for your car, and for every other farm use, there is a Firestone tire engineered and built to do the job — and to do it better than any other tire made.

There are certain definite reasons why Firestone tires perform better and last longer. One is Firestone's understanding of farm tire requirements based on years of experience in the farm tire field. Another is the never-ending Firestone research and development program to build the best today — and make it still better tomorrow. And still another vitally important reason for the superiority of Firestone tires is the fact that they are built by the finest craftsmen using the finest materials that science and machines can produce.

You can save time, money and do a better job of farming if you specify "Firestone" every time you buy a tire for your farm. From now on make it a Firestone.

Good to Bake—That's Devil's Food Cake
(See Recipe Below)

Cake Tempters

Family hungry for cake? As a general rule, families take it easy on cakes during the spring and summer because there's a wealth of fruits and berries to solve the dessert problem.

But, comes the first whiff of fall in the air, when the kitchen will stay cool enough even for baking, and there's the family on mother's heels begging for a cake.

Then, too, husbands and sons will soon be returning, and they will want a big taste of mother's good homemade cake. Be ready for the call when it comes, homemakers, with a brand new line-up of recipes that are bound to win the family.

We're still aware of the strategic situation in regard to sugar, so the following recipes don't go all-out for sugar. They're taste-tempting and delicious in spite of it all, and there's a grand variety from which to choose. Take your pick:

*Bran Devil's Food Cake. (Makes 16 cupcakes)

1 1/4 cups sifted cake flour
1 1/4 cups sugar
1/2 cup cocoa
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup shortening
1/2 cup whole bran
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs

Sift flour once, measure then sift again with sugar, cocoa, baking powder, soda and salt into mixing bowl. Add shortening and whole bran. Add about 3/4 of the milk, then vanilla; beat until perfectly smooth, about 100 strokes. Scrape bowl and spoon and mix well. Add remaining milk and beat until well blended. Add the well-beaten eggs. Fill greased muffin tins 3/4 full. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven about 25 or 30 minutes.

Do you like a cake served warm, in squares, with the tangy flavor of a citrus marmalade? This, then, is made-to-order:

Marmalade Tea Cake.

2 tablespoons melted butter or substitute
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 1/2 cups corn flakes
1 1/2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons shortening
1 egg
3/4 cup milk
1/4 cup marmalade

Blend together butter, brown sugar and 1/2 cup corn flakes. Set this aside for the topping. Sift together flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Cut in shortening. Beat egg and add milk. Add to dry ingredients, stirring only until combined. Add remaining 1 cup of cornflakes. Turn into greased 8-inch square pan. Dot

Lynn Says:

Make Dishwashing Easier: Stunt fishy odors on dishes by washing them in soapy water to which some vinegar has been added. Rinse dishes in hot vinegar water, also.

Hot, soapy water is indicated for greasy dishes; cold water for egg, starchy and milky dishes.

Scrape dishes before starting to wash and have a strainer in the sink to collect all leftovers. It's much easier than scooping them up out of the water.

Stack dishes carefully before washing. It won't seem like you have so many, and there's less chance of their breaking.

China can be allowed to dry by itself on a dish rack, but glasses, silver and cutlery should be wiped immediately after washing.

Make sure you have plenty of good absorbent dish towels handy. Use paper toweling for hands to save cloth towels.

with marmalade, spooned on top of batter; sprinkle with mixture set aside for topping. Bake in a hot (400-degree) oven for 25 minutes. Serve warm, cut in squares.

Sour Cream Spice Cake.

1/4 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
3/4 cup thick sour cream
1 1/4 cups sifted cake flour
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon cloves

Cream sugar and shortening, add egg and beat well. Add sour cream. Sift flour with baking soda, baking powder, salt, cloves and cinnamon. Add two tablespoons of the dry ingredients to the creamed mixture. Beat thoroughly. Add remaining dry ingredients to the first mixture, beating well. Pour into a well-greased and well-floured pan and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 30 minutes.

An unusual variation in cakes is to use gingerbread as an upside-down cake with an apple or orange topping. This saves both sugar and fussing as it is not necessary to make an icing for this type of cake:

Gingerbread Upside-Down Cake.

1/4 cup shortening
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup molasses
1 1/4 cups sifted flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
3/4 teaspoon ginger
3/4 cup sour milk

Bottom of pan:
2 tablespoons butter or substitute
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1/4 cup nuts
2 sliced apples or oranges

Cream sugar and shortening. Add egg, beat well. Add molasses, blend. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk to the creamed mixture. To prepare pan, melt butter and add corn syrup. Arrange fruit and nuts. Pour batter over fruit and bake for 35 minutes in a 375-degree oven. Turn cake out of pan immediately after removing from oven.

For those of you who like your whipped cream and can't get it, here is an excellent way of making it:

Whipped Cream.

1 1/2 teaspoons plain, unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup cold milk or water
1 cup well-chilled light cream

Soften gelatin in cold liquid. Set over hot water and stir until thoroughly dissolved. Pour cream into fairly deep, narrow bowl, making sure it is deep enough so cream covers at least 3/4 of the beaters. Stir in softened gelatin gradually. Set bowl in a pan of ice and let stand 5 minutes, stirring around edges several times. Leaving bowl in ice and water, beat with rotary beater 5 minutes. Cream will be light and fluffy but will not stand stiff enough to peak. Let stand 1 or 2 minutes more in ice water, stirring gently. Cream will thicken and become stiff enough to peak. This may be sweetened and flavored to taste. It may be served immediately or kept in refrigerator or cold place until ready to serve. Texture improves on standing in refrigerator for 1/2 hour. Stir until smooth and serve.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Mind Your Own Business

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THESE are good days in which to mind your own business. For one reason, because everyone's business is going to be complicated and hard under postwar conditions. And for another, because interfering in other persons' affairs is a harmful, wasteful and often useless employment.

Here is a letter from a woman who feels that she very decidedly ought to be minding other persons' business, even while she gives me a distinct impression that her own isn't being too well managed.

"My position is a very painful one," writes Carolyn Miller, from a Texas town. "I live with my husband's mother, who is a dear. She is only 52, active and capable, and we manage the house easily between us. I have a baby six months old.

"The trouble is my twin sisters-in-law, whom I will call Joan and Jean. They are 20, Joan married to a captain of marines, and Jean engaged to his brother, who is in the air corps. This marriage and this engagement took place before I moved in here. My husband, Bert, has been away for almost a year.

"Not His Baby."

"Joan, the married one, had a baby 10 months after her husband's departure for the south seas. She did not notify him of this baby's arrival until it was five weeks old, then a joyous cable was sent, 'fine little girl, both well.' His answer to this was so pathetically eager and happy that it made me sick, for in the family we all know that it is not his baby. Joan admits herself to a time of indiscretion, immediately after his departure, with one of his friends, since killed in the Pacific.

"The whole family expects me to be a party to this outrageous deception, of which I never would have heard, if I had not unexpectedly arrived here at the old home. My own instinct is to try to persuade Joan to write the truth to Art, and if she will not and her mother will not, to write him myself.

"Jean's case is, of course, less serious, but she is running around with one of the town boys, and whatever she feels, he is deeply in love. This seems to me terribly unfair to her absent fiancé, but her mother will do nothing but look worried and say that time will settle all these problems. Personally I don't believe in leaving such matters to time; human beings have responsibilities, and our duties to our absent soldiers are surely the most sacred among them.

"My husband is now returning, honorably discharged, and we will move back to our own home, in a town some miles away. Naturally I have kept these troubles strictly to myself, for the honor of the family, but I really am in need of advice as to my correct course, having been brought up myself in the belief that honesty is always wisest in the end, however painful. Please help me."

Let Joan Tell Husband.

My dear Carolyn, my advice heads this article. Mind your own business. Button up your lip about Joan's affairs and Jean's affairs, and concentrate upon managing your home—fortunately in another town, and keeping your husband and baby happy.

You don't know—and you have no

SILENCE IS BEST

It is often difficult to keep quiet when you happen to know some scandalous information. Many people persuade themselves that it is their duty to tell, because somebody is being deceived. They seldom stop to think that they may be making a bad situation worse.

The case discussed in today's article concerns two young wives whose husbands are still in service and out of the country. The girls are twins, young and pretty. Joan has given birth to a daughter—obviously out of wedlock. The other girl, Jean, is going around with one of the local men who is plainly in love with her. Carolyn, their sister-in-law, sees all this and feels she ought to write to the husbands and reveal the ugly facts.

Miss Norris admonishes Carolyn to keep out of these people's affairs. There is no good purpose to be served, she says, by telling the soldier-husbands now. Perhaps they will never need to know. In any case, it is the wives who should do the telling, and under more favorable circumstances than now exist.

business to know — what the relationship is between Joan and Art. Perhaps she has written him the full truth already. Perhaps she is waiting until he is home again, and at work normally again, and in love with the little girl baby, to say to him; 'Art, I don't know what weakness or craziness came over me—I never loved Tom as I did you. I was lonesome, and he was going away—to his death, as it happened—and we were carried away. Can you forgive me, and love her for Tom's sake, too, because he gave everything that he had, gave life itself, to keep her world safe for her?'

Perhaps, if something like that happens, Art never need be disillusioned. Art's heart need never be broken; perhaps there will be other children, and the little oldest girl not the least dear.

But whatever happens, your putting your stiff, moralizing, clumsy hand into this affair can only ruin everything, and do you no good. Leave Joan alone and leave Jean alone — Jean isn't the only pretty young flirt who's amusing herself in the absence of her heart's true love. Jean will probably meet her sweet-heart with innocent eyes and a royal welcome, and to all the world Joan's mistake will remain hidden, and Joan's daughter will have her honor and her place in the world untouched. In a word, Carolyn, mind your own business.

Vitamin Intake Sufficient

You homemakers are concerned with the proper amounts of calcium and of riboflavin, known now as vitamin B-2. Calcium builds bones and teeth. Riboflavin promotes growth and is necessary to normal nutrition at all ages. B-2 vitamins are found in milk and milk products, among other foods. For folks have been drinking 25 per cent more milk since 1934, and increased their consumption of the B-2 vitamins about one-fifth.

Vitamin B-1 and niacin have been added. Iron is an important nutrient and it is usually fairly well supplied in average mixed diets and the enrichment program adds even more. The average quantity of vitamin B-1 that you and your family had last year was 33 per cent higher than in prewar years 1935-1939. Nine per cent of this B-1 increase was due to the enrichment of grain products. You homemakers have learned that if your family does not have enough B-1 it is apt to result in a poor physical condition, poor appetite and nervous disorders.

State PTA Program Chairman Speaks At Orland Meet

Mrs. Floyd L. Tucker, State program chairman of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Past Director of Dist. 19 was guest speaker at the October meeting of the Orland Park PTA last Thursday evening. Her topic was Community Recreation.

Mrs. Tucker stressed the need of recreation in a community and said that all organizations in a community should help to get such a program started. She told us how such a project was started in her own community in Argo-Summit and has been going strong for the past two or three years, and would be glad to help us in any way to get started with our project.

Mrs. Tucker answered many questions along with her talk on recreation which proved very valuable to our group.

Larry Borgo rendered violin selections: Kiss Me Again, La Golondrina and The Dainty Princess. Mrs. L. Hedlund played the piano accompaniment. Community singing followed.

Mrs. Gustie Hallinan, membership chairman reported having secured 79 members to date.

Mrs. Ralph Town, health chairman gave a report that all physical examinations were completed and that Dr. Henke had finished examining the boys on the basketball team.

Refreshments were served by the hostess committee: Mesdames Clarence Kramer, Robt. Ebeling, Karl Ekberg, Ralph Town, L. Hedlund, O. Ellwood, R. Farr and Edw. Mannings.

A collection was taken at the close of the meeting for Christmas gifts for the boys in hospitals overseas, which is sponsored by the Camp and Hospital Committee of the American Red Cross.

Mrs. Knox, with the help of Mrs. Karl Ekberg at this date has purchased gifts and packed them, which made up 6 packages, and same are on their way to the Red Cross Headquarters in Chicago which will be mailed to their destination.
